

Iran Bombings Delay President

TEHRAN (AP) — A rash of bombs hit Tehran today, killing an Iranian woman, breaking both legs of a U.S. Air Force general and delaying President Nixon's schedule by 45 minutes.

One explosion occurred about 100 yards from the site of the President's final public appearance in Iran, at the tomb of the father of the Shah of Iran, where Nixon was to place a wreath. The bomb went off just outside the 10-foot wall around the tomb an hour before the President was due there.

Nixon's motorcade was delayed, but he went ahead with his appearance at the tomb of Reza Shah 20 miles outside Tehran.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said a car in which Brig. Gen.

Harold L. Price was riding in a Tehran suburb hit an explosive device in the roadway, killing an Iranian woman standing nearby and breaking both the general's legs.

A third explosion shattered windows and damaged a side wall at the seven-story U.S. Information Service building in downtown Tehran.

There was a fourth explosion at a Pepsi-Cola plant.

"There is no indication whatsoever that the acts were aimed at the life of the President or members of his party," Ziegler told newsmen.

Police charged that the bombings were the work of Iran's Marxist guerrilla movement which has been waging a two-year bomb and bullet campaign against the Shah's regime.

Baghdad Radio, in neighboring Iraq, has been calling on all "patriotic Iranians" to disrupt Nixon's visit. The Iraqi regime is angered by U.S. support of Israel and is also contending with Iran for dominance in the Persian Gulf area.

Nixon seemed unruffled as he went through with the ceremony at the tomb.

Newsmen on the scene said the blast occurred about 100 feet from the spot where the President was to place a wreath an hour later at the tomb of Reza Shah, the father of the present ruler.

Debris was thrown into the air and surrounding trees were shaken. Later two sticks of dynamite were found in the area, it was said.

After the ceremony, the President was to meet with the Shah. That meeting was delayed 45 minutes.

Gerald Warren, deputy White House press secretary, said the President would leave Tehran on schedule for Warsaw at 6:50 A.M. EDT.

The bomb, apparently a home-made dynamite device, damaged a boundary wall at the tomb, which is in an open space near a gold-domed mosque.

The road from Tehran to the royal tomb was sealed off an hour before Nixon's motorcade was to pass, and hundreds of uniformed police and plainclothesmen lined the route and mingled with the crowd.

The bomb in an alley at the side of the USIS building went off before most people had arrived for work. It blasted a gaping hole in the wall of the building, and smashed every window on one side. Homes within a radius of 100 yards also were damaged.

Explosion Damages Station

BELFAST (AP) — A bomb blast damaged the heavily sandbagged Springfield Road police station and army command post in Belfast Tuesday night, killing one British soldier and wounding four other soldiers and two civilians. A sniper killed another British soldier on patrol during the night.

The bombing capped a day of violent reaction by the Provisional wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army to the cease-fire ordered by the rival Official faction. About 40 young gunmen were reported to have switched from the Officials to the Provisional so they could keep fighting.

Chief of Staff Sean MacStiofain of the Provisionals ordered his rebel guerrillas to continue their bomb and bullet campaign despite the truce the Officials announced Monday night.

In addition to the two soldiers, a 12-year-old girl shot on Sunday died during the night, raising the toll in three years of communal warfare in Northern Ireland to at least 352 dead. The child had been buying candy and was hit by a guerrilla who apparently was aiming at a policeman.

Guerrillas also bombed a beer bottling plant in Belfast, causing $520,000 damage; a police station at Dungiven, County Tyrone, and a garage at Claudy County, Londonderry.

Protestant militants planning an anti-IRA march in Londonderry Saturday announced they would defy the British government order that they keep away from the center of the city and adjoining Roman Catholic sections.

Last weekend thousands of masked, uniformed Protestants paraded through Belfast in military formation and British officials fear such a demonstration in Londonderry—where the Protestants are outnumbered—would produce a sectarian battle.

weapons, and the resolve of the Soviets and Americans to continue their negotiations actively. They said they hoped the accords would be the start of a new and promising era of talks on the control of armaments.

The ministers also expressed satisfaction with West Germany's new treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland. They said they hoped the agreement on West Berlin with the Soviet Union, due to be signed on Saturday, will mean the beginning of a new era for the city, free from the tension which has characterized its history over the past 25 years.

In view of this development, they went on, they accepted the invitation of the Finnish government to start preparations in Helsinki for a conference on security and cooperation in Europe.

Nixon in Warsaw

For President Nixon

Warm Warsaw Greeting

WARSAW (AP) — President Nixon arrived in Warsaw today for political and economic talks with Communist party leaders and told a cheering crowd that Poland has a special meaning for him.

"This for me is a very special moment," Nixon said. "When I was here in 1959 I was a vice president of the United States and now for the first time in the history of our two countries a president of the United States stands on Polish soil."

Praising the country for the progress it has made since World War II, the President said he brought greetings from U.S. citizens and especially those of "millions of Americans who are so proud of their Polish background."

The President, on the last stop of his four-nation summit tour, was greeted after a flight from Tehran by Polish President Henryk Jablonski and Premier Piotr Jaroszewicz. Communist party boss Edward Giersek was not at the airport, since he holds no government post. He was scheduled to meet with the President a few hours later.

The President and Mrs. Nixon flew back to the Soviet Bloc after a state visit of nearly 24 hours in Tehran that included talks with the Shah of Iran and a glittering imperial banquet amid a rash of small bombings which the White House said was not aimed at the President.

After their two-day visit, the Nixons fly home to Washington Thursday.

The President will confer with Giersek in the parliament building, while U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Foreign Minister Stefan Olszowski sign a bilateral consular agreement giving greater American Embassy protection to U.S. citizens arrested in Poland. The pact took 10 years to negotiate.

Premier Piotr Jaroszewicz will host a state dinner for the presidential party and the Nixons will spend the night at Wilanow, a 17th century palace outside Warsaw.

Security around the baroque palace has been stepped up.

The bombs killed one Iranian woman and broke both legs of a U.S. Air Force general, and one exploded near a royal tomb before Nixon got there to place a wreath. But White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said there was "no indication whatsoever that the acts were aimed at the life of the President or members of his party."

The Iranian police blamed the bombs on local Marxist guerrillas who have been waging a bomb and bullet campaign against the Shah's regime for two years. Iraqi broadcasts from Baghdad have been urging them to disrupt Nixon's visit.

Nixon's trip to the tomb of Reza Shah, the father of Iran's present ruler, was delayed 45 minutes by the bomb that exploded just outside the 10-foot wall around the tomb. The bomb did little damage, and Nixon appeared unruffled as he placed a wreath on the tomb.

The most serious explosion was set off by the car of Brig. Gen. Harold L. Price as he was riding in a Tehran suburb. The device planted in the roadway killed an Iranian woman standing nearby and broke both the general's legs.

Other blasts damaged the U.S. Information Service building, a Pepsi-Cola plant and the downtown office of Iminco, an oil company partially owned by American and other foreign interests.

Nixon's visit to Tehran was capped for grandeur at a white-tie state dinner given by the Shah Tuesday night at Niavaran Palace, the imperial residence.

Tens of thousands of Iranians turned out to welcome the President and Mrs. Nixon, and the President told the dinner guests:

"We could tell them from the expressions on their faces they had not been ordered to come because, while you can order people to get out on the streets, you cannot order them to smile."

Seeking To Isolate City With Bombing

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy fighter-bombers, using electronic "smart" bombs with TV nose cameras for pinpoint accuracy, launched an aerial campaign to isolate Vinh, the big coastal city midway between Hanoi and the demilitarized zone, military spokesmen said today.

Pilots from the carrier Midway said they knocked out the Tho Tuong railroad bridge 10 miles southwest of Vinh with two of the 1,100-pound high explosive bombs.

The glide bomb carries in its nose a television camera that relays pictures back to a screen in the plane. When the bomb focuses on the target, the pilot keeps it on course by transmitting electronic signals to four tail fins that steer it.

Waves of Navy jets from three carriers in the Tonkin Gulf concentrated their raids around Vinh on Tuesday.

Vinh is a major trans-shipment point for supplies moving south. Pilots also reported destroying railroad tracks and damaging a highway bridge leading to the city.

Officials in Saigon claimed that most major bridges and roads and the northeast and northwest rail lines from Hanoi to China have now been cut.

In Washington, the Pentagon claimed that U.S. bombing has cut "close to zero" the flow of supplies from China by rail.

The battle fronts in South Vietnam were reported generally quiet, with the exception of Kontum, in the central highlands.

For the third successive day, 50 U.S. B52 bombers blasted North Vietnamese positions on all sides of the city with 1,250 tons of explosives.

The Saigon command said 175 North Vietnamese troops were killed in fighting in and around the city Tuesday. South Vietnamese losses were 31 killed and 89 wounded the command said.

Field reports said sizable pockets of enemy resistance remained in residential areas in the northeastern and southeastern parts of the city for the seventh day.

Increase Estimate On Yeater's Will

Although no distribution of funds from the estate of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Yeater is possible for about another five months, The Democrat-Capital learned Wednesday that State Fair Community College may receive between $1 and $2 million.

John Pelham, executor of the estate, said that whatever money is given SFCC would have to be for a "lasting capital addition" desired by Mrs. Yeater, who died in early April, as a memorial to her husband, the late Charles E. Yeater, who acted for several years as a vice-governor of the Philippines.

Shortly after Mrs. Yeater's death, it was reported the college would receive about $500,000.

Pelham said a six-month waiting period was required before money from the estate could be distributed. He said the will instructed him to meet with the school's board of trustees to learn what the money, once received, would be used for.

"I can safely say it will go between $1 and $2 million," Pelham said. He added that he interpreted the will's stipulation to mean Mrs. Yeater desired the money to be used for a building and that "I'm going to hold out for that."

Fred Davis, SFCC president, said he understood the six-month waiting period was required so the estate could meet any outstanding expenses against the property.

Pelham said he planned to meet with the college board to determine how the money would be used and also to see what matching funds, if any, would be available to the school for capital improvement purposes.

He and Davis agreed that the bequest would be a tremendous asset to the college and might provide the only route through which the school could attain permanent facilities.

Airport Victims

A victim in an unprecedented terrorist attack at Lod International Airport is taken to Tel Hashomer Hospital Tuesday night. Three Japanese suicide guerrillas opened fire with automatic weapons and hand grenades into a crowd, killing more than 20 and wounding many more. (UPI)

Tragic Massacre At Israeli Airport

TEL AVIV (AP) — Premier Golda Meir, blasting Cairo and Beirut for "rejoicing," told the Israeli parliament today that Arab states will be held responsible for Tuesday night's massacre at Israel's international airport. At least 22 persons were killed and more than 70 were wounded in the shooting.

The 74-year-old leader, her voice trembling with anger, also censured world governments for lax airport security and said the massacre by three young Japanese terrorists hired by a Palestine guerrilla movement could "easily have been prevented."

France, on whose national airline the gunmen arrived, condemned the terror attack by the submachine gun-and grenade-wielding Japanese.

Travelers, relatives, bystanders and employees at the crowded airport were hit during the wild fusillade of gunfire and explosions loosed by three gunmen who disembarked from a Paris-Rome-Tel Aviv flight, pulled weapons from their baggage and started shooting.

A police superintendent said 22 were killed and 70 injured. But officials at hospitals where the bodies were taken said the death toll was 25, and wounded totaled more than 70.

After firing indiscriminately into the crowd, one of the terrorists shot up two parked planes, then blew himself up with a hand grenade. A second was killed by bullets fired by his comrades, and the third was captured alive after trying unsuccessfully to blow up a plane, police said.

The dead included at least 13 Puerto Ricans passing through the airport on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem and Prof. Aharon Katzir, former president of the Israel Academy of Sciences and head of the International Union of Pure and Applied Biophysics.

A 3-year-old girl was among the dead.

Among those who escaped injury were Carol Golden of New York, arriving for a vacation, and her brother Tom, who lives

NATO Allies Reach Agreement

BONN (AP) — The United States and its North Atlantic allies agreed today that military measures to reinforce confidence and increase stability between Soviet and Western forces could be discussed at the 35-nation conference on cooperation in Europe which President Nixon and the Soviet leaders agreed should be held next year.

This compromise was reached at the end of NATO's two-day spring meeting of foreign ministers to which Secretary of State William P. Rogers brought word of the agreements in Moscow that opened the way to further East-West talks.

There was also agreement today among the allies—in which France did not join—to press for separate talks with the Soviets on mutual and balanced reduction of forces in Europe.

In a final communique, the ministers insisted "defense and detente are inseparable." They renewed their pledge to defend the freedom and security of all 15 members of the alliance.

But they added that they are working for an improvement of their relations with the countries of Eastern Europe and seeking a just and lasting peace to overcome the division of Germany and promote the security of Europe.

They noted progress in relations between East and West, with increased contacts of leading personalities and significant agreements.

They welcomed President Nixon's signature in Moscow of limits on nuclear

Mind Your Money

'Barr Dollar' Is Not Special

By PETER WEAVER

Q — I missed your comments on the "Joseph Barr" dollar bills. Do these have any special value? — Mrs. J.D. Wayne, Neb.

A — According to Joseph Barr himself, who was secretary of treasury for one month during the last days of the Johnson Administration, "those dollar bills are worth exactly $1 each."

Barr says he would not have agreed to have his signature on the bills unless the Bureau of Printing and Engraving agreed to print so many that they would not have any special value for collectors. The bureau printed nearly 5 billion.

Unfortunately, says Barr, who is now president of a private bank, "some unscrupulous companies are using these bills as bait to get people to buy their catalogue service and other offerings."

Q — I have 1928-D and 1928-G $2 bills. Are they of any extra value? — Mrs. F.M., Red Oak, Iowa.

A — According to the book "Paper Money of the United States," by Robert Friedberg (Currency Institute, Inc., New York, $25), a 1928-D $2 bill in "new" condition is worth about $30 and a 1928-G is worth around $15.

Q — You said National Geographic magazines sell for $2 apiece dating from 1957 to 1965. A local bookstore said they'd pay a nickel each for them. What gives? — Mrs. W.R., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A — Sorry. The price I quoted is what the National Geographic would charge if you wanted to buy "like new" copies of editions in those years. I was answering a reader's question about donating the magazines to a school or library.

You can mark down the "current market value" of the magazines as a tax deduction if you give them to a place that can use them. You can quote the price a bookstore would charge to get you any particular National Geographic. If unobtainable, you can quote

National Geographic's price, making adjustments downward if your magazines aren't in good condition.

Prices for what any individual collector or library will pay for rare, old issues of National Geographic vary widely. You have to advertise.

Q — I have several shares of Columbia Oil and Gas common stock dated 1930. The stock is not listed anywhere. How can I find out if it has any current value? — C.E.C., Sun City, Calif.

A — A brokerage firm or bank may be able to let you browse through "Fisher's Manual of Obsolete Securities." It might contain information on your stock. Stock Market Information Service, Montreal, Canada, will trace old securities for clients for a fee of $10.

Q — In a recent column you said use of a tight-lid garbage can would help control rats. All the cans I've been able to find have lids that are so loose they can be easily knocked off. Any suggestions? — Mrs. C.D., Mount Tabor, N.J.

A — Rat exterminators suggest hooking a spring used on screen doors to the side handle of the trash can. Run it through the handle on the lid and then secure it to the opposite side handle.

Q — A mink is bothering my chickens. If I keep a light on in the henhouse will it keep the animal away? — H.R., Pilot Grove, Mo.

A — No. But it might give your hens insomnia. University of Maryland agriculture extension agents suggest getting a "Have-a-Heart" trap which will snare the animal (could be mink, weasel or fox) without harming it. You can give the animal to a zoo or free it in some distant woods.

For Supreme Court

Speedup Said Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court will have to step on the gas—hard—if it intends to finish work and get out of town by July.

The justices handed down opinions in only five argued cases Tuesday. None was of overriding importance. Included among them was a ruling on patents for machines that removes veins from shrimp.

A total of 66 argued cases remain. Among them: the legality of the death penalty, baseball's exemption from antitrust laws, and the wiretapping of domestic "subversives" by federal agents without warrants.

The court plans to meet to announce decisions once a week in June. This means it will have to accelerate to a rate of about 16 decisions a session to clear its docket.

In the last 70 years, the court has never extended a term into July. The justices held a special session in July 1942, however, to rule against a group of German submariners who had been intercepted by FBI agents, and in July 1957 to rule against a soldier, William S. Girard, who wanted to be tried in an American court in the slaying of a Japanese woman.

In September 1958, the justices interrupted their customary June-to-October vacation to order immediate desegregation of public schools in Little Rock, Ark.

Only tradition would prevent the justices from extending the current term into July, a variation court sources say is not planned now.

This year's pileup of cases is the probable reflection of deep divisions within the court as it shifts away from the liberalism of the years when Earl Warren was chief justice to a more restrained philosophy under Warren Burger.

Only one of the last 17 opinions was unanimous. Even the ruling on shrimp-machine patents split the court, 5 to 4.

Tuesday's most important decision allows the states to cut welfare payments to needy children by a larger percentage than aid to the blind, the aged and the disabled.

The court is not compelled to rule on all 66 remaining cases. Some could be held back for reargument next term; others could be swept aside on secondary points.

The most critical, in human terms, challenge the death penalty as being in violation of the 8th Amendment's prohibition on "cruel and unusual punishments."

On Tuesday, the justices unanimously declined to hear an appeal by California to restore capital punishment in that state. It was struck as in violation of a similar provision of the California Supreme Court last February.

Study Indicates Housing Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A two-year Department of Housing and Urban Development study has indicated a need for 875 new units of unsubsidized housing annually in Columbia, Mo.

The analysis shows an annual need for 375 new single-family dwellings, 275 additional multi-family units and 225 new mobile homes.

The report also lists a need for 445 new housing units a year for low-income people and the elderly. These units would be eligible for HUD subsidy programs, the report notes.

The agency stressed the report shows needs and does not forecast the number that will actually be constructed.

Dr. Mayo Resigns In Protest

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Dr. Charles H. Mayo II, charging that private insurance plans don't fill the nation's needs, has resigned his position as associate medical director of Mutual of Omaha.

Mayo, 41, said Tuesday he is convinced the federal government should take over the job of providing health insurance. He said he feels that Mutual of Omaha and other private health insurers have "done nothing for the over-all health of the country—they are in there for business."

Dr. Mayo, grandson of Dr. Charles H. Mayo—one of the brothers who founded the famed Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.—said his resignation from the insurance firm was effective May 1 and it was without bad feelings on either side.

The doctor also announced the formation of a statewide committee to support the proposed Health Security Bill, sponsored by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich.

Dr. Mayo, who works in a free clinic in south Minneapolis, acknowledged that there was little chance the bill would be passed by Congress this year.

The bill would encourage preventive medicine and provide compulsory national health insurance financed by payroll taxes and general federal funds.

Clash on Office Space

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Office space caused Missouri Republicans to clash horns Tuesday in the first of what could be a long fight before the August primaries.

It all started when "Youth For Bond," part of state Auditor Christopher "Kit" Bond's campaign for governor, took over the former offices of the "82 in '72" campaign. That is a campaign to elect a GOP majority in the Missouri House of Representatives. There are now 51 Republicans and 132 Democrats.

"82 in '72" Chairman, Rep. Les Langford, R-Springfield, said minority leader Rep. John T. Russell, R-Lebanon, turned an office rented by the campaign organization over to Bond without permission from the Republican caucus.

Langford said he learned about the "takeover" in Springfield during the state GOP convention when informed by Jefferson City Republicans he had sent to the office for supplies.

Langford contends the "82 in '72" campaign was created "as a permanent organization of the Republican caucus and nobody has a right to decide it is no longer needed except the Republican caucus."

Langford said the group was paying $25 a month rent on the building from a Jefferson City businessman, Jim Strong.

A call to the telephone number Tuesday listed in the Jefferson City director as "82 in '72" was answered "Youth For Bond." The female voice said she did not know how to reach the group "82 in '72" and said there had been a "switch in offices."

Russell told the Associated Press by telephone Tuesday, he did not think the group was paying rent and that Strong donated the office space to the "82 in '72" campaign.

Russell said he had been contacted by Al Sikes, Bond's campaign director in Jefferson City, and he assumed that Strong wanted Bond to have the offices. Sikes later said Bond's group pays rent also.

"We haven't had a full-time staff there for some time," Russell said of the office at 900 Moreau Drive. When told about the telephone greeting at the number he added: "Of course if they are using the same telephone number — well, that should not be."

State Rep. R. J. "Bus" King, R-Clayton, who is also a contender for the GOP nomination for governor, said he thought the turnover of the office to Bond "calls for an investigation."

Meanwhile, Sikes, Bond's campaign director, admitted

Bond may not even know about the office in question.

"He knows we have an office," Sikes answered. "But I'm not sure he knows whose office — we've been looking for a place for a month or so."

Sikes said the "Youth For Bond" moved in "about three days ago — about the middle of last week," but only after it was cleared with Russell and the former secretary of the "82 in '72" drive.

"Kay Gunther turned the keys over to us," Sikes said, "and as far as the telephone is concerned, I think they should have had it taken out themselves."

Indiana Offers Paris

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — An economy-minded tourist might consider a trip to Indiana where a variety of exotic names could be visited between Lake Michigan and the Ohio River.

There exist, for instance, the Hoosier communities of Cairo, Paris, Dublin and Shanghai.

A visitor might not care to see Gary's steel mills, the Civil War sites made famous by Morgan's Raiders, or the southern hills where Lincoln once roamed.

But he could travel but a few miles to learn why Indiana towns would give themselves such names as Aroma, Gnaw Bone, Fickle and Zipp.

Those are authentic Indiana place names, as are Paragon, Bear Wallow, Popcorn, Sasfras, Cyclone and Two Pumpkin Centers.

The Hoosier tourist bureau points out that visitors can tour the world, in a way, between Chicago and Louisville.

Early settlers of British ancestry named Indiana cities and towns Bedford, Brighton, Bristol, Aberdeen, Dublin, Eaton, Runnymede and Somerset.

Humphrey Apology Is Made

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey has apologized for saying that Sen. George McGovern's tax plan made the South Dakotan "a fool," and both of the candidates have rejected any possibility of having Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace as a running mate.

The tone of the second televised confrontation between the two frontrunners for the Democratic presidential nomination was milder than their first encounter. It focused largely on McGovern's tax and defense proposals.

Early in Tuesday night's debate, Humphrey apologized for having suggested Sunday in Fresno, Calif., that McGovern would be a fool to propose what the Minnesota termed confiscatory tax proposals.

The Minnesotan said, "That's unfortunate language and a man makes a mistake." He described McGovern as a fine man.

Both men appeared inhibited by the program format, which called for them to answer questions from four newsmen under limits that barred the free-swinging exchanges of their first session Sunday night.

Humphrey, whose first reaction was an objection to the format, said the meetings with McGovern are "having a wonderful effect" on his effort to beat McGovern in next Tuesday's California primary. "It's like vitamins," the Minnesota senator declared.

Asked about the fact that questioning centered on McGovern's proposals, Humphrey said, "That's probably because he has more printed up." He said he was surprised there wasn't more questioning on his urban and environmental proposals.

At the outset of the special one-hour version of NBC's "Meet the Press," both candidates rejected Wallace as a possible vice presidential running mate while indicating they would support whichever of them wins the Democratic nomination.

Hijack Ransom Granted

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Brazilian authorities turned over $250,000 and three parachutes demanded by a hijacker, got the other 85 passengers and crew members off the Brazilian airliner and then recaptured the plane Tuesday night.

As troops flooded the four-engine turbo-prop Electra with tear gas, the hijacker killed himself with a bullet through his head. He was a stocky, dark-complexioned man who spoke with the accent of north-east Brazil.

Nobody else was hurt, and the money was recovered.

Armed with a small pistol, the hijacker had commandeered the Varig Airlines plane on a flight from Sao Paulo to Curitiba, 250 miles to the south. The gunman forced the pilot to fly back to Sao Paulo where he made his demands known.

He wanted 1.5 million cruzeiros and three parachutes. He also demanded that the plane be refueled and allowed to take off again for an undisclosed destination. In exchange he promised to free the passengers and all but three of the crew.

Pilot Celso Caldera, carrying out the hijacker's orders, told the control tower that three men had taken over the plane. But he said he was able to communicate the true situation through a predetermined code.

The money was taken to the plane shortly after 10 p.m. A few minutes later the passengers began leaving the aircraft.

When the passengers and the rest of the crew were safely out, the three remaining crew members shoved the hijacker into the passenger cabin and locked the door. They jumped out of the cockpit.

Troops who had surrounded the plane began piping tear gas into it through the air conditioning system. Brig. Delio de Mattos, commander of the 4th Air Force Zone, said the man was found dead with a bullet wound in the head from the pistol he carried.

Davis Trial Testimony Is Ended

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Testimony has ended in the Angela Davis trial with refusal by the final witness—the father of George and Jonathan Jackson—to take the stand. Final arguments were to begin today.

The refusal of Lester Jackson to be a prosecution rebuttal witness almost overshadowed the end of testimony Tuesday as both sides rested after 13 weeks of the trial.

Jackson, a Pasadena, Calif., postal employee, noted that both his sons are dead and told the court that he would not answer any questions "for the preservation of my mental health."

Superior Court Judge Richard E. Arneson then found him in contempt and fined him $100. He could have been sent to jail for five days—or until the end of the trial—unless he agreed to testify.

The Jackson brothers were key figures in the prosecution's murder-kidnap-conspiracy case against Miss Davis, a black militant and an avowed Communist.

The case could go to the jury late this week but the latest speculation is that it will not be submitted until Monday.

Cornelia May Work California

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace's wife, Cornelia, may campaign in California for her husband, Mississippi Gov. William Waller said.

"It is my understanding that Mrs. Wallace plans to campaign in California and will do so, but the time has not yet been set," Waller, a Democrat, told reporters Tuesday.

However, Billy Joe Camp, Wallace's press secretary, said: "I will assure you that Mrs. Wallace will not leave the governor's side until doctors assure her that she can leave with relative ease of mind."

He did not rule out, though, the possibility of Mrs. Wallace going to California where Wallace forces are mounting a write-in campaign for the Democratic presidential aspirant.

Waller, Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida and Terry Sanford, president of Duke University, visited with Mrs. Wallace Monday. The Mississippi governor said doctors at Holy Cross Hospital would not let them see Wallace, recuperating from gunshot wounds inflicted May 15.

Nixon To Address Congress Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders announced today President Nixon will address a joint session of Congress Thursday night immediately after his return from his trip to Moscow.

The address, in the House chamber, is scheduled for 9:30 p.m. EDT.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said Tuesday that Nixon should make such a report to Congress.

No Damage in Fire

Firemen were summoned to extinguish a grass fire at the 600 block of West Main at 5:09 p.m. Tuesday. No damage was reported.

Firemen said a passing train probably started the blaze. The blaze was put out with two hand pump buckets.

Can Erect New Sign

in Israel with her mother. A bullet gouged the mother's knee, but she was not hurt seriously.

"Are you kidding?" said Miss Golden when asked if she would stay for the month she had planned. "I'm getting out of here as soon as I can."

The 10-minute attack turned the customs hall and waiting room into a shambles of blood, human flesh, broken glass and parts of suitcases and bodies.

"It looked like a slaughterhouse," said one witness.

The Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine—PFLP—issued a statement in Beirut, Lebanon, claiming responsibility for the shooting. The captured terrorist told Israeli authorities he had been paid by a guerrilla organization, but he did not say which one.

The Popular Front said the massacre was in retaliation for the killing by Israeli troops of two Palestinian hijackers of a Belgian Sabena jetliner at the Tel Aviv airport three weeks ago.

Committee Is Selected For New District

Selection of a steering committee for the recently-formed Pettis County Water District No. 1 was completed at a 7:30 p.m. Tuesday meeting of the group at the Federal Building, 319 South Lamine.

A member of the steering committee, Hank Monsees, Route 2, reported that more than 120 persons have expressed interest in becoming patrons of the water district, which would encompass land three miles either side of East Highway 50 between Smithton and Sedalia's east city limits.

Monsees said that a water district may be formed through a Circuit Court order after 25 interested parties are obtained.

Lloyd Lewellen, secretary of the group, said other new water districts had been serviced by an overhead pipe outlet placed at various locations throughout the district. Monsees, who said such an outlet system would be included in the area facility, explained this would be a substantial farming aid in that it would allow farmers to fill their spraying tanks in a much shorter time.

Monsees added that the district would be financed by the Farmers Home Administration.

He also said the entire area, which covers about 40 square miles, would have to be surveyed to determine who would want to be connected to the district. He said he is emphasized in a fact sheet recently prepared for the group that there is no additional cost to persons who do not wish to become part of the district. He added that the water district fact sheets were available from steering committee members.

Members of the steering committee selected Tuesday evening are: Otis Thomas, Route 4; Sam Young, Beaman; John Sneed Jr., Route 5; Gerald Hancock, Bill Arnold, Gene Cook, E. D. Birdsong, Leroy Young, Doug Kneibert, Maurice Campbell, Gerald Rothe, Jack Shellely, Lawrence Popp and Hank Monsees, all of Route 2.

Lyle Fiene is temporary chairman of the group, Lloyd Lewellen is secretary and Leroy Young and Tony Monsees are co-treasurers.

Refunds Measure Advances

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Bills to provide Illinois state refunds of about $3.7 million in excess sales taxes paid by auto and truck buyers moved to the Illinois House today after unanimous Senate passage.

About 290,000 passenger car and 15,000 light-truck purchasers are entitled to the refund because they bought vehicles between Aug. 16 and Dec. 10 last year.

During that period, they paid sales taxes on a federal excise tax which later was repealed retroactively.

Passage Tuesday of the legislation apparently would settle the dispute whether the refunds should be made by the state or by a special trust.

Sen. Donald D. Carpenter, R-E. Moline, Senate sponsor, said in a statement in opposition to the proposed trust.

"The state has all the records necessary to give these people back every dollar they paid in returnable sales taxes."

"If a trustee returns this money, he will take a slice for his and his lawyer's administration costs. As a result, people who are titled to a return of $12 might only receive $8. My bill will prevent this."

First Buyer

Thirteen-year-old Robert Simon, Route 3, recently became the first person to buy the paperback, "Stamps and Stories Book," from the Sedalia Post Office. Postmaster Maurice Hogan Friday sold the 224-page book, a recent publication of the Postal Service.

The book, also available in hard cover, contains color reproductions of American stamps with stories about them. This is the first such book from the Postal Service and lists the value of every American stamp from 1847 through mid-1972, Hogan said.

Learns From Collection

About four years ago, Robert Simon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Simon, Route 3, noticed "how pretty" the 3-cent Statue of Liberty stamp was — "the colors in the picture" drew Simon's attention since he likes to draw and paint.

His four year's collection has grown to 1,500 American and foreign stamps in two albums. Simon plans to buy two more albums. He spends at least five hours a week on philately, the hobby of kings and kids the world over.

Simon, 13, said he acquired most of his stamps through exchanging duplicates with friends in school, although he buys some.

The constant handling and studying of postage stamps of foreign countries has given him a wealth of general knowledge, it becomes evident when one talks to Simon, a seventh grader in Sacred Heart School. He has familiarized himself with the flora and fauna, leaders, major industries and exports, costumes and works of art of several foreign countries.

Besides commemoratives, stamps that have special appeal for Simon include those which depict wild life — stamps which show alligators, catfish, polar bear and the eagle. "Because it's about nature. It gives me a feeling that the people who make stamps know that the eagle represents power," Simon explained.

Stamps of Argentina, for instance, depict cattle because meat is one of its major exports, Simon pointed out.

When the young Sedalian sits at his desk with his philatelic paraphernalia — multicolored stamps, hinges, tweezers, magnifying glass and albums — he doesn't have the problem which seems to haunt many a teenager, that of "killing time." "Stamp collecting takes up the time in which you wouldn't be ordinarily doing anything else," Simon explained.

Stamps have a monetary value, too, if one decides to sell. "The older a stamp, the more valuable it becomes because there will be fewer of them around," Simon pointed out.

What does the budding collector plan to do with all his stamps? "I'm going to keep increasing my collection since there are so many to collect. I'll keep on collecting until I grow up. Then I'll give them to my sons or nephews, so they'll keep increasing their (the stamps') value," Simon said.

Hospital Looks Good Compared to Jungle

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — Even the inside of Reynolds Army Hospital at Ft. Sill looks good to S. Sgt. Walter H. Ward.

It sure beats the jungles of Vietnam, behind enemy lines. Ward is recuperating at Ft. Sill from 13 days of hiding in the Vietnamese jungles after a helicopter airlifting him and five other U.S. Army advisers was shot down. Ward was given up for dead, and his wife and children, living in Lawton, were notified that he was missing and presumed dead.

Mrs. Ward didn't believe it. Her husband, she said, was indestructible.

"He never even had a cold," Mrs. Ward said. But when Sgt. Ward was rescued and telephoned her from an evacuation hospital in Pleiku, "We were all hysterical here that day. There was laughter and tears."

It began April 24 when enemy tanks and troops overran the main base of the American advisory team at Tan-Canh. The Americans escaped through barbed wire and a mine field, then were taken by a small helicopter, two at a time, to Dak To II Airport. Later that morning a UH-1 helicopter with a crew of four arrived to evacuate the six advisers.

"There were muzzle flashes from enemy weapons all over the place as we lifted off," Ward recalled. "The copter, trying to increase speed and gather altitude, flew straight into a nest of five 50-caliber machine guns not more than 600 yards away from the airstrip."

The helicopter was about 400 feet up, but Ward doesn't remember the crash. The pilot and co-pilot were killed, and a major, a lieutenant and a medic died soon afterward.

Ward had a bullet crease behind his right ear, a broken left arm, a dislocated right shoulder, three teeth knocked out and facial cuts and abrasions. Of the survivors, only Spec. 4 Charles M. Lea of Deer Creek, Tex., door gunner on the copter, was not seriously hurt. Maj. Julius Warmath of Humboldt, Tenn., had a broken pelvis. Capt. John Keller, a Kentuckian, had a broken shoulder blade. Spec. 5 Rickey Vogel, a Missourian, had a fracture of his right arm at the elbow.

The survivors crawled out of the wreckage into the high grass of a gully to hide. They buried the two men who died immediately after the crash, but left the pilot and co-pilot in plain sight — if they were missing, the North Vietnamese would know there had been survivors.

"We could hear them talking," Ward said of the enemy troops.

"For three days we could hear them talking."

The survivors salvaged two C rations from the wreckage, and Lea brought drinking water from a nearby stream. He also salvaged a machine gun and about 1,000 rounds of ammunition.

For nine days they hid in the area, growing hungrier. The medic died on the third day. The C rations were gone in two.

The men gathered tall, tender-looking grass, boiled it over a fire of smokeless bamboo shoots, and ate it.

On that ninth day the five voted to have the two most able — Keller and Lea — go search for food and help.

The next day Ward and Vogel saw two catfish swim into a mud puddle after minnows, and they quickly dammed it, scooped the water out of it — and had one catfish boiled and one roasted.

Keller and Lea got to a radio. On May 5, seven helicopters appeared, dodged enemy fire and lifted the survivors out. One of the rescue craft was shot down, but its crew was rescued.

"It was the happiest day of my life," Ward said.

Seminar Assails Justice System

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The bail bond system works against the defendants, and the entire criminal justice system works against everybody, even judges, speakers at the 13th annual Human Relations Seminar here said Tuesday.

A lawyer, an appeals court judge and a court administrator all denounced the bail bond system, and a California judge said the entire nation's criminal court system is in a crisis situation.

Des Moines, Iowa, lawyer Dan Johnston said the free enterprise system may be all right for business, "but it certainly has no place in the criminal court system."

He said the system, as now constituted, "is not worthy of respect," and cited an alternative program that has been tried in several cities. Under this system a judge decides whether a defendant should be released on the basis of a point system reflecting how likely he is to return for trial.

In each instance, less than one per cent of those recommended failed to show up," he said. "This system puts justice in the hands of the judge instead of the bondsman."

Johnston called bondsmen, "your friend, for a fee."

"A system that keeps a man in jail simply because of inadequate finances offends my sense of justice," he said.

Judge Hez Bussey of the Oklahoma Court of Criminal Appeals pointed to Oklahoma County as lacking a progressive bail bond system. He said "a number of problems" are engendered by the lack of an adequate bail bond system and the lack of speedy trials.

Oklahoma Court Administrator Marion Opala said the criminal justice system "is nothing but a meaningless phrase."

"Monetary bail, for instance, has taken on a punitive form, in many cases."

Superior Court Judge Alan Lindsay of Oakland, Calif., told the seminar the "judicial superstructure" of the criminal justice system needs repair.

"The present system," he said, "is too expensive and time-consuming. The American people are concerned and solutions are needed."

Lindsay said better court management is needed to allow judges more time on the bench. He said more judges are not the answer, but that research assistants would leave judges more time for their chief duties.

The California jurist said it takes at least 400 days for an appeal in California, and he urged an intermediate review court between the appeals courts and the Supreme Court.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI would like to resign but apparently feels he cannot, according to remarks taped by the Vatican.

"It would be beautiful to be able to shake off the burden of the Church and say I do not want it," Pope Paul said in a private speech to a group of nuns April 24, a time when the Italian press was debating whether the pontiff would abdicate when he turns 75 on Sept. 26.

In releasing the remarks Tuesday, the Vatican said it acted to correct misleading quotes from the same speech in Italian newspapers. Pope Paul was quoted as saying, "I do not want to give up the papacy."

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerome H. Holland, the U.S. ambassador to Sweden, has been nominated to be the first black director in the 180-year-history of the New York Stock Exchange, according to The New York Times.

The nomination of Holland, former president of Hampton Institute in Virginia, is subject to approval by the exchange's membership.

Wall Street sources indicated Tuesday that Holland would give up the ambassadorial post he has held since 1970, but sources in the State Department said his resignation was not likely, the Times reported in today's editions.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. James C. Finlay, 49, has been named the 30th president of Fordham University.

Finlay, dean of Fordham's Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, will succeed the Rev. Michael Walsh, who resigned recently.

The appointment was announced Tuesday.

Redwoods of California Caught in Modern Environmental Dilemma

The Loftiest Alive

The tallest redwood in the group shown here, center, in Redwood National Park, Calif., is believed to be also the tallest living thing on earth. The 500-year-old giant is the park's most notable attraction — but it's still an 8.5-mile hike from the nearest visitor parking. The three-year-old park's lack of planned tourist facilities is a disappointment to many area residents, who were counting on tourism trade from the park to boost their sagging, timber-based economy. (AP)

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A majestic sweep of giant redwoods — some taller than a 30-story building — stands today in the serene sanctuary of Redwood National Park, no longer threatened by the saws, axes and bulldozers of timbermen.

But a few of the conservationists who fought so hard for creation of the park a little over three years ago are pleased with what they see there.

Timbermen and local residents also call the park a failure, or—at the very least—a disappointment.

Some even dispute the notion that the redwoods in the park are being saved.

The living museum envisioned in the park is really a death row for the redwoods, declares one frequently-heard theory in the redwood country, because the elaborate measures to protect the redwoods will destroy their natural cycle of regeneration.

That theory—advanced by some timbermen—is sharply disputed by conservationists. But that is only one of many controversies still raging over the 58,000-acre park stretched along California's rugged coast 300 miles north of San Francisco.

Conservationists want the park expanded to protect another 47,000 acres of redwoods from cutting by the lumber companies who own virtually all the land surrounding the park.

The conservationists also dispute some of the logging practices in the commercial forests around the park, and they have a separate, continuing, complex battle with timbermen on those issues—particularly so-called "clear-cut" logging.

The timbermen and many local officials say neither the lumber companies nor the local tax rolls can take out of their timber harvest reserves and put in parks.

Uses of the park—whether for campers, day visitors by auto or hikers—are also still topics of intense debate. Even who will run the park is not yet settled.

One thing seems agreed upon by all sides—Redwood National Park is not much of a park yet.

The park today is a hodgepodge of parcels of state and federally owned tracts mixed in with private timber land. It extends nearly 60 miles along the coast, including 30 miles of rugged, fog-shrouded coastal beaches and bluffs. About half is virgin timber and the other half is once-logged land, some as recently as 1966.

A twisting 10-mile-long, one-half-mile wide "tail" of the park extends south through privately-owned timberland up Redwood Creek to Tall Trees Area, site of the tallest living tree.

North of that is Lady Bird Johnson grove, site of presidential dedication ceremonies two years ago.

The main coastal highway extends the length of the park, but only one of three information centers is on that highway, and that center is not in the park.

The park's most notable attraction is a 500-year-old redwood tree which stands 367.8 feet high and is believed to be the tallest living thing on earth.

But the tallest tree is 8.5 miles from the nearest visitor parking, outside of the park, and Park Supt. John H. Davis estimates only 800 to 1,000 persons made the long hike last year to visit the tree. Altogether, only 685 signed the visitor's register at the tree.

That is not a sign of failure to Davis, who feels he is still just getting started on the complex task of making a national park. But it is a point of deep disappointment to many area residents, who were counting on tourism trade from the park to boost their sagging, timber-based economy.

The tourists haven't flocked to the park, and many local businessmen say they never will. But others are anxious to solve the knotty administrative and ownership problems between the state and federal governments and get a master plan adopted so the park can be developed.

Most of the issues revolve around one central, yet-unresolved question: What should a redwood park be?

Although most of the $92 million appropriated for the park by Congress in 1968 has been spent on land acquisition, the issues of the purpose and philosophy of the park are still not settled.

Brochures for visitors say the park was created "primarily to protect a representative segment of old growth redwoods and outstanding coastal scenery."

Specific plans are contained in a master plan which has been printed in a working draft but has not yet been presented to Congress for adoption. Davis says until it is adopted—possibly by this summer—little can be done to develop the park.

The plan has upset conservationists, because it concedes the present 50,000-acre boundaries to be final. It also says the park shall be managed as "a natural area" of the National Park System, which would preclude some of the intensive park development some persons hoped would be the base of a large tourist industry.

Davis says he envisions some sort of tram train system that would give visitors access to important parts of the park without the disruption of highways. But he says large tracts of the park probably will be accessible only to backpackers.

But the primary objective stated in the proposed master plan to "insure that there will always be superlative groves of redwood that possess the esthetic quality for which the park was established."

Even that is disputed by some timbermen, who say the redwoods will die if simply kept in the sort of preserve conservationists want the national park to be.

"They'll be calling it 'Hemlock National Forest' in 100 years," said Kramer Adams, conservation director of the California Redwood Association, the spokesman for the area's lumber companies.

Adams said redwoods in their natural state were periodically thinned by fire, to which the redwoods are more resistant than other vegetation.

The fires cleared the way for new redwood growth and kept the redwood forest constantly regenerating itself, he said.

"But now we've protected them from fire, and they'll protect them from cutting (in the national forest). Someday the only redwoods left will be those planted by the industry," Adams said.

The national park is made up of three state parks totaling nearly 28,000 acres and another 30,000 acres bought from local timber companies. Both portions of the park have created controversy.

The three state parks, developed over 45 years, are still operated by the state, despite strong subtle pressures from the federal government to turn them over to the National Park System.

But some of the state park land was donated specifically to the state, and a spokesman for Gov. Ronald Reagan says his staff is "still trying to figure out some way to put it together and solve the legal questions."

Almost all parties in the issue believe the parks must be merged, preferably under federal operation, although there is little, if any, criticism of how the state has managed its parks, which are the heart of the Redwood National Park.

State legislation has been proposed to give the parks to the federal government, and the idea has broad support from Eureka area residents, who fear there will be no major park development until it is all under one management.

That development is anxiously awaited. The purchase of the federal portion of the park took $25 million off the local tax rolls, cutting local tax revenues by $600,000 a year. There also is fear of eventual cuts in lumber company payrolls as the firms run out of timber to harvest.

"So far, it's been a paper park, not a going concern," said Dan Walters, managing editor of the Eureka Times-Standard. "People want the issue settled. Now that they have a park, they want to make it an economic asset."

Davis admits that "there has been local dissatisfaction" about the lack of development of the park, but he says tourism is up slightly anyway and that "some of this increase cannot help but have come from the publicity that a national park exists here."

In the meantime, Davis says, some essential but not too noticeable things have been accomplished—a survey of boundaries of the park and the clearing of about 30 ramshackled old buildings from the site.

But, except for the building of two trails and a 20-car parking lot at Lady Bird Johnson grove, Davis concedes there is little evidence creation of the park has changed anything in the area the past 3½ years.

C. Robert Barnum, a Eureka businessman and a member of the park's master plan team, says there will never be any economic boom from the park, or any large tourist or convention facilities built at the edges of the park.

He said the area's weather—rainfall up to 90 inches a year—its short vacation season, and its distance from other vacation spots preclude the building of any major tourist industry to make up for expected losses in timber jobs.

"There hasn't been any development because there won't be any, not because of the (split) management of the park," Barnum said. "I can't see economically there will ever be any development of any consequence, not in the foreseeable future, 10 or 20 years, at least, unless it's in the park itself."

"The vacation experience to be gained in a redwood forest is limited," said Harold Del Ponte, a Del Norte County supervisor. "You look at them and drive on."

Says Joseph Russ IV, a local rancher and official of the State Chamber of Commerce: "The highly touted increase in tourism has not materialized and the inflated projections of per capita visitor spending have proven to be just that—highly inflated."

But the drive to expand the Redwood National Park is gaining some momentum.

David Van de Mark, president of the Citizens for a Redwood National Park, which spearheaded the original national park drive, says the Save the Redwoods League, Sierra Club and other organizations are mounting a new drive in Congress to dramatize the dangers to the redwoods in the present park.

Van de Mark says he believes the timber companies are deliberately cutting on land closest to the park to cut off future expansion of the park, and he rejects a timber-industry proposal of selective logging in a buffer zone around the park.

But of the 47,000 acres he and other conservationists want added to the park, Van de Mark estimates 5,000 acres have been cut down since Oct. 2, 1968, the date the park was founded.

George Gentry, president of the North Coast Timber Association, dismisses the charge of a speedup of cutting around the park as "ridiculous."

"There has been no greater cut of timber in the areas surrounding the park than before the park was established in

Serene Sanctuary

California's Redwood National Park is the haunt of the hiker now — no longer that of the timberman. The Park, established in late 1968, comprises some 58,000 acres along California's rugged coast 300 miles north of San Francisco, and it contains a majestic sweep of giant redwoods, about half of it virgin timber. Conservationists want the park expanded to protect another 47,000 acres of redwoods from cutting by lumber companies who own most of the land surrounding the park. (AP) 1968. In fact, the annual cut for the three companies concerned was higher that year than in 1971," Gentry said.

Gentry also says the area's timber industry is nearing a "point of no return" in dedication to parks.

"You can dedicate only so much land to scenery and recreation without endangering jobs, payrolls and taxes based on productive land."

Van de Mark says another 14,000 acres of virgin forest, now owned by the timber companies, can be saved. He says that and the rest of the 47,000 acres still should be purchased, even though it is second growth redwood, because it is valuable to protect the natural drainage basins of the virgin parts of the forest now in the park.

"As far as maintenance of the water quality goes, the Park Service is failing," he said.

"The American people were led to believe that they got something better than they got when they bought the park," he concluded.

Opposing Transport Proposal

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Administrative bodies of more than one-fourth of Missouri's 114 counties are opposing a drive to put a $730 million transportation bond issue on the November ballot, a Farm Bureau Federation official said Tuesday.

Elements opposing the bond issue and the constitutional amendment authorizing it, said Victor M. Gray, are those living in rural communities.

Gray, who is director of the Farm Bureau Federation's legislative programs in Jefferson City, said "Missourians Against Road Tax Raid," staunchly oppose diversion of gasoline taxes for proposed mass transit.

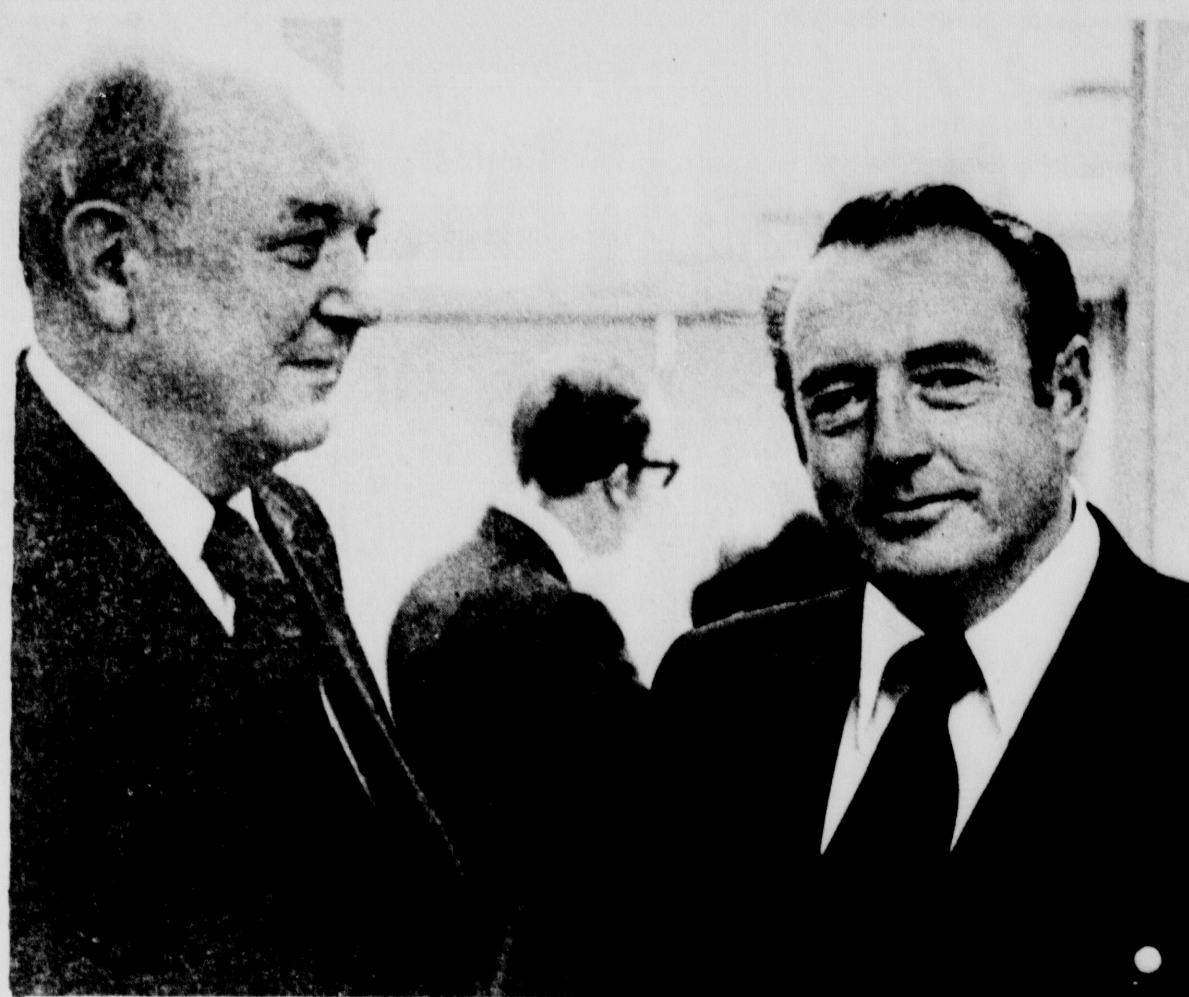

"We are not opposed to mass transit," he added, "but we think the people who use it should pay the bill. Mass transit should be financed by the beneficiaries, as highways are, or by general revenues of the metropolitan areas."

Gray also contended the cost of the proposed $730 million bond issue would actually amount to more than $1.2 billion, including interest by the time bonds are retired in 2007.

A proposed state constitutional amendment would end the earmarking of gasoline taxes and highway-related taxes for highway purposes exclusively.

Thayer Resident Killed in Crash

THAYER, Mo. (AP) — A 63-year-old rural Thayer man, Elbert L. Underwood, was killed Tuesday night when his car went out of control, struck a culvert and burned. The accident occurred on Highway 63, three miles north of Thayer, according to the highway patrol.

Meets Rusk

William R. Parkhurst, Route 3, president of Parkhurst Manufacturing Co., was one of the Missouri Valley College board of trustees members who recently greeted Dean Rusk when he arrived at the Missouri Valley campus in Marshall to deliver the main address at the school's 83rd commencement exercises. The school said 160 seniors received their degrees. Rusk was one of two men given honorary degrees during the ceremony.

Misconduct Hearing Is Scheduled

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A formal hearing into alleged misconduct by Supreme Court Judge John E. Bardgett will be held June 8 in Jefferson City, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat reported today.

However, Appeals Court Judge Robert G. Dowd, chairman of the six-member Commission on Retirement, Removal and Discipline of Judges, told the Associated Press that "Under rules of the Supreme Court, all of our proceedings are confidential and I can't comment. Only after it's determined what action is to be taken can an announcement be made."

The commission began an informal investigation into an incident involving Bardgett and Rep. John Webb, R-Webb City, following a complaint filed by House minority leader John T. Russell, R-Lebanon, March 15.

The complaint alleged that Bardgett reviled Webb in public at the Downtown Holiday Inn on Feb. 29.

Bardgett said he apologized twice to Webb for the incident. Webb said he believed he was berated and called names because of voting against a pay raise bill for judges last year.

The June hearing in Jefferson City would be closed to the public, again under Supreme Court rules governing the commission.

Explosion Fatal To Five Children

VALDESE, N.C. (AP) — An explosion ripped through a bomb shelter dug into the hillside at the home of a textile executive, killing five children.

Fire Chief A. O. Anderson said the children apparently were playing on the hillside right above the bomb shelter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Garrou at the time of the explosion Tuesday.

Anderson said one child's body was found in a street at the bottom of the hill. The other bodies fell into the pit left when the blast blew off the roof of the shelter.

Garrou's 12-year-old daughter Jean was one of the victims. The others were identified as Donald Robinson Jr., 14, and his sister Regina, 12, Gloria Hammond, 12, and 10-year-old Michael Powell.

Cynthia Picou, 10, escaped with only minor injury, according to a spokesman at Valdese General Hospital.

Dick Robinson, father of Donald and Regina, said he and his wife and Garrou were the first on the scene.

"I couldn't even tell you what it was like," Robinson said as sobbing relatives attempted to comfort him and his wife.

"Gina (Regina) was thrown plumb down into a street in front of the shelter about 50 to 100 feet away from it," Mrs. Robinson said. "I found her lying there and it was so awful, so awful."

Cause of the blast, being investigated by federal and state agents, was not immediately determined.

Anderson quoted Garrou, an executive with Alba Waldesian, Inc., as saying the shelter was kept locked. Its entrance was at the foot of the hill.

British Jails Seem More Stringent and Lenient Than American Cells

New Style Prison

A comfortable dormitory at Coldingley Prison, in Surrey, England, accommodates about eight inmates. Coldingley is a model establishment, a training prison providing more in the way of industry, education and rehabilitation — and better living quarters — than are available to many British prisoners. Of some 39,000 inmates of English prisons, 25,000 are housed in 19th century buildings and 14,000 share cells originally designed for single occupancy. (AP)

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Martin Wright leaned back in his chair, took a sip of tea and mused: "The potential is there, but so far, there haven't been the provocations."

Wright is the director of the Howard League for Penal Reform and he referred to the potential for trouble in British prisons.

A recent report on the work of the prison department showed there were 39,389 inmates in the 111 jails and juvenile detention centers or borstals in England and Wales—a drop from the 1970 figure, but still large enough to cause massive overcrowding.

A spokesman for the Home Office, which supervises the prisons, estimated that 25,000 inmates are housed in 19th century buildings and 14,000 inmates share cells originally designed for single occupancy.

William Cahn, president of the U.S. National District Attorneys Association, recently described the overcrowding as "a short fuse on a long stick of dynamite."

Cahn was one of 50 district attorneys who spent a week studying law enforcement in Britain.

To an American, the British prison system seems at once more stringent and more lenient than that of the United States.

The age of the prisons, the amount of time men spend locked in tiny cells, the old-fashioned industry in some prisons and the often-gloomy physical appearance of the buildings combine to make one think of a description from a Victorian novel.

In contrast, however, there are a few ultramodern prisons which resemble an industrial complex more than a jail; about 10 per cent of the inmates are housed in "open prisons" with virtually no barrier to escape; guards—like British police—carry no weapons.

One of the showpieces of the British prison system is Coldingley.

Opened in 1969, the prison is designed to test the hypothesis "that for a certain type of prisoner, the most important part of his training is to learn to work in an efficient well-managed industrial organization, to have to work under supervision and against the clock in achieving economic levels of output and quality, to earn more or less money according to how hard he works and his own abilities will allow."

The prison does not coddle its inmates. "Outside the fence it's a hard, wicked world," said the official, and the prison tries to imitate that world as much as possible.

The men are allowed a certain say in their lives—but they also must accept responsibility for their decisions.

At present, Coldingley has 222 inmates. The final capacity is 296. Men from the region are sent to the prison when there are job vacancies providing they meet certain criteria. They must be over 21, they must have between nine months and three years left of their sentence to serve, they must be physically and mentally able to work a 40-hour week and they must have the potential to develop work habits.

From a distance, the low, modern buildings of Coldingley resemble a college campus more than a prison. It is only when a visitor approaches the institution that the fences topped with barbed wire become visible.

With the industrial buildings, the atmosphere is that of a factory. There are no uniformed officers, only civilian foremen. Step outside the buildings, however, and there are uniformed officers patrolling with guard dogs.

Coldingley is a training prison—one to which sentenced prisoners are transferred after initial assessment in a local prison.

Training prisons usually provide more in the way of industry, education and rehabilitation for inmates, but only about half the prisoners ever get to these facilities.

For the other inmates, the time in prison means at least 11 and probably 16 hours spent in cells some 12 feet long, 9 feet

Industrial Complex Jail

Inmates producing machine tool parts work a 40-hour week in this machine shop in Coldingley Prison, in Surrey, England. They're paid in cash for their work which could also be in the prison laundry, the prison shop or on the cleaning squad. The aim is to build up good work habits, and Coldingley, a showplace of the British prison system, is designed to resemble the outside world in as many aspects of living and working as possible. (AP) wide and 18 feet high. There are no toilets in the cells, only chamber pots. When he does work—usually at unskilled tasks like sewing mailbags—the prisoner earns an average of $1.30 per week. The maximum wage at Cold-ingley, in contrast, is about $4.70. Both reformers like the Howard League's Wright and the government agree conditions must be improved. They disagree about what should be done and how serious the threat of riot or rebellion really is.

"We have the odd fracas, but nothing really serious," said a Home Office spokesman. He said there was little racial antagonism and "not even many accusations of brutality by prison officials."

Why hasn't there been the same kind of trouble there has been in the United States?

"You can't answer that just in terms of prisons," said the Home Office spokesman. "You must do it in terms of the whole society. Perhaps a better question would be: 'Why have you got the trouble and we haven't?'"

Some people feel the answer lies in the differing traditions of the two countries—the frontier attitude of the United States versus the more settled British heritage. They point to the general level of violence in America, particularly in the big cities and note proudly that you can walk around almost any area of London at any time of the day or night without fear of attack.

Discussing the question of why there have been no riots in British prisons, Wright said, "There's already been a certain kind of rumbling from a certain element, but the inmates aren't a united force yet."

Colonel Gatschet was cited for his performance as an F-4 pilot when he led a flight which destroyed a heavily defended enemy command post and ammunition storage area.

He was presented the medal at Hancock Field, N.Y., where he is now assigned as an air operations officer with a unit of the Aerospace Defense Command. ADC protects the U.S. against hostile aircraft and missiles.

three SAC wings in the Western Pacific-Southeast Asia area.

The captain is permanently assigned at Carswell AFB, Tex. Captain Edwards, who has flown 142 combat missions over Southeast Asia, holds seven awards of the Air Medal and the Air Force Commendation Medal.

A 1960 graduate of Sacred Heart High School, he earned his B.S. degree in public administration in 1964 from the University of Missouri where he was commissioned upon completion of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program. He is a member of Phi Kappa Theta.

BALTIMORE (AP) — They weren't magic carpets, but three Persian rugs were spirited out of a downtown department store—under the arms of three men.

Chinese Mayors Making Unique Inroads

By MERV BLOCK

SLEDGE, Miss. (AP) — "I'm a Rebel and proud of it," proclaims a sign in the rear of the drugstore. The drugstore is not a small "r" rebel who defies authority, but a big "R" rebel who personifies authority: the mayor.

There's no need for him, though, to proclaim a distinction far more unusual than his being a Rebel from the University of Mississippi: he's Chinese, and Chinese are as scarce in Mississippi as plantation owners in China.

Mayor Luck Wing, 42, and most of the other 1,440 Chinese in the state live in the northwest corner of the Mississippi river Delta region.

Wing's position as mayor is unusual indeed, for there are only three Chinese families among the 518 people in Sledge. Unusual but not unique: Wing's brother John, 53, is mayor of nearby Jonestown—in a state where Chinese compose only 1-15 of 1 per cent of the population.

Just northwest of them, in Arkansas, the city of Turrell has a Chinese mayor, Charlie Wah. He and the Wings are believed to be the only Chinese mayors in the United States. It might be misleading to describe them as Chinese, though, inasmuch as their orientation is American.

"This is my country," says Wah earnestly, "and I'm going to do as much as I can for it." Wah, 48, who was born in China, runs a grocery. He donates his monthly municipal salary, $50, to the high school's scholarship fund.

Luck Wing also makes civic contributions: not his salary, but some of his profits.

As mayor, Wing has to cope with problems plaguing places with populations far greater than Sledge's: pollution (air and water); sewage (with construction of a new disposal system and creation of a lagoon for Sledge's sludge, outhouses have been outlawed); cost overruns; noise (from freight trains); crime (many people leave their homes unlocked but shoplifting is getting worse); not to mention the demand for improved and expanded municipal services for less taxes (the library, whose magazine rack features "The New 1960 Fishing Annual," has recently been enlarged).

For dealing with these problems and sitting as judge, Wing is paid "$600 a month—once a year." Quick with a quip, Wing presides with good humor over the monthly sessions of the town board, whose five white aldermen meet in the room behind the firehouse.

Wing did not seek the office. When the previous mayor decided three years ago not to run again, the manager of one of the town's two banks drew up a petition asking Wing to put his name on the ballot for the post. The position was signed by the mayor and 78 other residents.

His reluctance overcome by the appeal, Wing did run (as a Democrat), and won, defeating a white man who is a grandson of Sledge's founder.

Although most of Sledge's 350 or so whites live on the east side of the Illinois Central railroad tracks and the 150 blacks live on the west side, they appear to be undivided in their praise of Wing. "He's the best mayor we ever had, us colored people," marvels Tom Hill, 67, a gas station attendant. "He can't be beat. We go to him and tell him what we need and he gets it done. I don't care if he is Chinese, he's a good man."

A white citizen, Russell Samuels, 64, the night marshal, says of Wing: "He's been a mighty nice fellow. He totes himself good." A white grocer, Fred Wren, 43, commends Wing as "fair, open-minded and very intelligent," adding, "He's a high type person regardless of his color."

"I'm not really conscious of being Chinese," comments Wing, "even when I shave in the morning. Only when I go somewhere else and they start asking me questions. Like, 'Were you born here?' 'No,' I say, 'I was born in Jonestown.'"

The Wings and their four children eat about 1½ pounds of rice a day, usually with a Chinese dinner, but they don't use chopsticks because the sticks are so slender they slip through the wire basket in the dishwasher. To obtain Chinese foodstuffs, they order by mail from San Francisco. Mrs. Wing, a native of Greenville, Miss., also savors Southern specialties: she makes grits, hushpuppies, catfish and chitlins—often Chinese style.

Despite discriminatory treatment in the past, the Chinese now are getting along fairly well. Luck Wing's brother Lee, 46, who also lives in Sledge, is a general agent for an insurance company and employs nine whites.

Mrs. Lee Wing has two brothers and a sister who are married to whites, whom the Wings delicately call Occidentals. And John Wing, Jonestown's mayor, has a daughter who is married to a white. (John, elected in 1965, thinks he is the first Chinese mayor in the country.)

This Is His Country

Mayor Charlie Wah of Turrell, Ark., is pictured proudly showing off a new city voting machine. He was born in China, but it's perhaps misleading to describe him as Chinese, inasmuch as his orientation is American. "This is my country," he says, "and I'm going to do as much as I can for it." (AP)

Polly's Pointers

No Return Patterns Are Her Pet Peeve

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the dress pattern companies. I do wish they would put patterns in sealed envelopes so that, when necessary, they could be returned and the store would be satisfied that the pattern had not been used. There are times when we find we have bought the wrong pattern and are stuck with it as virtually no store will exchange one even when it is obvious it has not been opened. — MRS. L.E.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I need to know how to get the glue used to put ceramic tiles on bathroom walls off the tiles. This glue was left on after a very sloppy job was done about 10 years ago. — KATY

DEAR POLLY — I think M.A.Z. could eliminate the red stains left by her maroon corduroy robe by soaking the robe in strong cold salt water solution for about an hour. This was the way my mother made fabrics colorfast back in the good old days. — MRS. E.M.

POLLY'S NOTE — So did mine.

DEAR POLLY — When serving hot cooked cereal to children anxiously waiting for their breakfast, I add a scoop of ice cream to each bowl. This cools the cereal quickly, is nutritious and adds smiling faces around the breakfast table. — CHARLOTTE

DEAR POLLY — After years not knowing what to do with my son's tiny toys I finally hit on the idea of buying a child's bicycle basket (cost less than a dollar) and hooked it over the inside edge of his toy box. All of his little toys are put in it, it does not take much space and he can easily and always find the toys. The hooks on the basket are just the right size for the toy box to close. Your column has been a life-saver to me so many times. — WILMA

National Officer Visits Local DAR

Mrs. Clarence W. Kemper, Clinton, chaplain general of the National Society of Daughters of the American Revolution, was the speaker at the Saturday meeting of Osage chapter DAR which met at the Bothwell Hotel.

Mrs. Kemper spoke of the recent Continental Congress of DAR held in Washington, D.C. She said Americans must be alert, heed warnings and use the power of the ballot. If America expects to be strong, and remain a world leader we must plan today. Mrs. Kemper said. It is a great thing to be a peacemaker but it is sometimes dangerous. The United States must cut back on ruthless spending or bankruptcy of the country could result, she said.

Mrs. Herbert Siefert, regent, presided over the meeting and the flag ritual was led by Mrs. Everett Stumpf.

Miss Mary Hurlbut gave devotions. Mrs. H. E. Lindstrom presented the national defense program and Mrs. Robert Horton read the president general's message.

Guests introduced were district director Mrs. Marie Dickinson, Clinton; Mrs. Albert Helphrey, Windsor; and Miss Dorothy Longan, St. Louis.

Mrs. Clarence W. Kemper

Mrs. L. H. Hodges gave highlights of resolutions passed at Continental Congress including reduced immigration, a balanced budget, US holding of the Panama Canal, opposition to grant amnesty to deserters and draft dodgers, opposition to unnecessary busing and promotion of patriotism by requiring American history in schools.

Mrs. Stumpf reported that two flags were presented to new cub scout dens by the chapter and Mrs. Siefert reported seven Junior American Citizenship pins had been presented to school children.

Officers elected were Mrs. C. F. Scotten, regent; Mrs. Robert Maxwell, first vice-regent; Mrs. P. Cecil Owen, second vice-regent; Mrs. Robert Horton, chaplain; Mrs. Harvey McFarland, secretary; Mrs. Oscar DeWolf, corresponding secretary; Miss Sue Heckart, treasurer; Mrs. James Bass, registrar; Mrs. John Lewis, historian; and Miss Frances Trader, librarian.

Hostesses were Mrs. DeWolf, Miss Heckart, Mrs. Albert Kunkel, Miss Jessie Browneller, Mrs. Judson Banks, Mrs. Russell Glenn, Mrs. Earl Thomson, Mrs. Ralph Brown, Mrs. E. W. Bartley and Mrs. Samuel Ross.

Odd Size Is New Average

NEW YORK (AP) — More than half the women in the United States wear the wrong bra size according to research which has brought about the first new concept in the design of bras since their introduction in the 1930s.

From its beginning the brassiere industry has always made bras in even numbers, 30, 32, 34 and so on. Why? Tradition, money involved in stock and just plain unthinking. However, when the National Bureau of Standards announced early in 1971 that in the past 10 years the American woman's bust had increased one inch, making the average bust no longer 34-B but 35-B, one manufacturer of intimate apparel, began developing a bra for the odd sized bust of 33, 35, 37 and 39. Kayser-Perma-Lift tested it on approximately 300 of its women employees across the country and discovered that slightly more than 55 per cent wore odd sized bras.

About Town

The daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Morton, 2501 South Grand will hold an open house from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday in honor of their parents' 25th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Slaton, formerly of the Beaman community retired recently in Port Malabar, Fla. Slaton, a graduate of Smithton High School, retired from the U.S. Navy after serving 30 years as an aircraft mechanic.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Many people think anything goes now, but this is not so. There is a need for certain conventions. And no matter what changes occur in the world, the human need for appreciation goes on."

So says Amy Vanderbilt, whose word is law in American etiquette, but who is so determined not to let etiquette lag behind the changing times that she has revised her monumental work on the subject, combining the traditional customs with the new ones.

In the bright office of her 100-year-old brownstone home here, Miss Vanderbilt discussed the recently published "Amy Vanderbilt's Etiquette." A warm, unpretentious woman, she makes etiquette sound as though it can—and should—be a part of one's everyday life.

"I feel there's more honesty now in social interchange, and this is good," she says. "But I think the danger is that we'll go too much the other way."

Miss Vanderbilt says she is constantly astounded at the points of etiquette people aren't aware of. "Etiquette used to be part of social folklore—things everybody was just supposed to know," she says. "But now people have to be taught—whether at their mother's knee, through observation, or painful experiences. And it isn't just a matter of kindness and consideration either. All the kindness in the world will not get you through the eating of an artichoke."

Among the common mistakes people make, this expert points out, are improper table manners—such as picking up with the fingers chicken cooked in sauce, or forgetting to wipe one's mouth before sipping a glass of wine; typing a signature on a letter instead of writing it out; women using an incorrect signature, failing to reply to kindness or a gift as promptly as possible; and thinking that widows do not use their late husband's name.

Miss Vanderbilt says 50 per cent of the questions she receives in the mail deal with weddings. "It's a time of great emotional involvement," she points out, "and people who have never thought about etiquette before do then."

While in favor of some changes in weddings, Miss Vanderbilt says she has been cautioning young people against forgetting all the conventions. "I have been getting mail from young people who were married in some fanciful fashion, and who feel cheated and want a wedding in church now," she observes. "I have to say to them that from a social viewpoint you really can't do it."

Miss Vanderbilt calls huge weddings "awful" and she has been inveighing lately against huge showers. "Showers should be for a few intimate friends," she points out, adding that there is more interest now in having joint showers for the bride and groom. "Brides are no longer isolated from the groom," she says, "and besides, they're probably living together anyway."

The author says attitudes towards entertainment have changed too. "I don't like to see things done slap-dash," she says, "but with a lack of household help, you don't have to entertain in kind any more. More and more people are having buffets, using student help or caterers."

Miss Vanderbilt says she does all she can to keep up-to-date—pointing out that having children herself, it is difficult to be rigid.

"For instance," she says, "it is acceptable now for young people of opposite sexes to travel together." But she has words of caution for a couple who live together without the benefit of a marriage license, and decide to have a child. "They're running counter to tradition, and eventually will come to the point where they have to come to terms with it. This will be at some point where legality is involved—such as the child entering school."

And in her book, she notes that young people who engage in premarital sex have a responsibility not to bring unwanted children into the world.

To keep up with her subject, Miss Vanderbilt says she reads all she can—including articles in the medical and psychiatric field. "I have great files on VD and group sex," she says laughing. "Nothing surprises me, and nothing shocks me."

Ann Landers

Answer Question With A Question

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this letter for all dark-skinned Americans who are asked regularly by clods, "What ARE you?" In the last few years I have been asked if I am Puerto Rican, Polynesian, Jewish, Mexican, Italian, Greek, Syrian, Cajan, Armenian, Lebanese, Negro or Chinese.

Actually my mother was French and my father was Irish. I am just DARK. When I give this response the reaction is strange. They say, "Oh, no. You must be something else, too."

Why do people care what I am, or what ANYBODY is? Can it be they cannot relate to a person until they get their prejudices sorted out?

Please tell me how to respond to these jackasses? — Dark-Eyed Susan In New Brunswick.

Dear Susan: A rude question should be answered WITH a question: Sample: Now WHY in the world would you be asking me a thing like that? What possible difference could it make to you? If they persist, repeat your question. You do not owe these clods an answer.

Dear Ann Landers: I am not much of a writer but I have a story to tell all the young women out there who think a wedding ring and a marriage license aren't important.

I agreed to live with a man 26 years ago before it was considered the "modern" thing to do. My love had suffered through one very bad marriage and he said he'd have to wait a year or two before the pain of the divorce wore off. Whenever I mentioned marriage he said he "wasn't ready" and to please stop nagging. He'd let me know. Finally I gave up.

We lived together until six months ago when he died. Ever since that time I've been trying to collect the social security, pension rights and insurance a wife usually gets. It has been the most horrible experience of my life. The questions I have been asked made my gray hair stand on end.

Unless the laws are changed or society's attitude toward the unmarried wife is drastically altered, women like me will be humiliated and cut down at every turn. Even in states where the common-law wife has legal rights she must prove it — and that's not easy.

I say to every girl who reads this, if your man really loves you he will not ask you to share his life without giving you the legal protection that marriage provides. It's the woman who makes the final decision as to whether or not she'll settle for a no-ring arrangement. If she makes the wrong decision, as I did, she will pay the price. — Short End Of The Stick

Dear S.E.O.T.S.: I can add nothing to your letter except my thanks for writing it. A good title for this story might be: "Free Love Can Be Very Expensive."

Dear Ann Landers: I am very much in love with my first cousin and our families are against our marriage. They keep telling us we cannot be married because it is against the law. They seem to have the idea that children born of such marriages are not normal. Is there any scientific evidence to support this statement? — Bored With Fairy Tales

Dear B.W.F.T.: The scientific facts are as follows: In families where there is epilepsy, hemophilia or other diseases and conditions in which predisposition might be hereditary, cousins should not marry (unless they agree to remain childless). Some states DO permit first cousins to marry — and if both people are healthy there is no reason why they shouldn't.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key To Popularity." Send 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to this newspaper.

Weather Boosts Farming

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri farmers made the most of last week's good weather, with the state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service listing all five days as suitable for field work.

There are some indications of a moisture shortage in the eastern and southern sections of the state, with the rest of the state reporting adequate readings.

The service's weekly report, by crops:

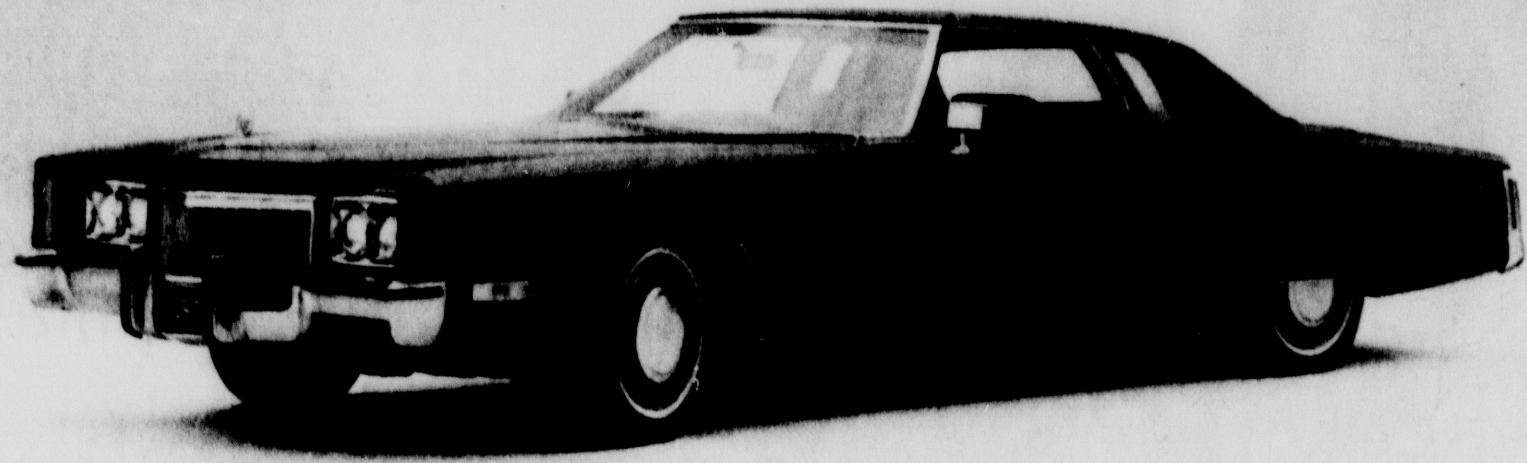

Corn—88 per cent planted, 18 per cent more than one week ago.

Soybeans—55 per cent planted, compared with only 22 per cent a week ago; still 11 per cent less than last year at this time.

Grain sorghum—50 per cent planted, compared with 24 per cent last week and 74 per cent a year ago.

Alfalfa — First cutting at 54 per cent, up from 30 per cent a week ago and nine per cent more than last year at the same time. Alfalfa weevil infestation has been noted in the south and central sections, with some reports spreading into the northeast and north central.

Wheat and pastures — Wheat is 93 per cent headed, with pasture conditions good statewide except fair in the southwest and southeast.

The sable black car has a black leather interior, black vinyl padded roof, front wheel drive, power steering, dual power brakes, power windows, cornering lights, automatic load level

Ogilvie Suggests Protest

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie says Illinois residents living outside Cook County should pay their personal property tax bill under protest.

Ogilvie said in a statement Tuesday that only through such a procedure could a taxpayer receive a refund if the tax were wiped off the books by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The high court is considering a challenge to the tax, which was abolished by a November 1970 referendum but, in effect, restored by a decision of the Illinois Supreme Court.

The governor said he and Atty. Gen. William J. Scott "are both very hopeful that our long fight to end the hated personal property tax on individuals may end in victory in the U.S. Supreme Court."

"It would be risky to predict a favorable decision there," he said. "But the mere fact that the court accepted the case is a hopeful sign."

"The victory, if it comes will be hollow for persons now paying their personal property taxes unless they pay under protest," Ogilvie added. "Under the law, there can be no recovery of the taxes paid unless this procedure is followed."

Paying a tax "under protest" means that the money must be held in trust by the government and cannot be used as revenue until a court rules on the issue. Such payments often are placed in banks by county treasurers.

Ogilvie said there was no need for Cook County taxpayers to protest their personal property tax because all payments already are being held in escrow pending a Circuit Court ruling.

Killed in Mishap

PERRY, Mo. (AP) — A one car accident has claimed the lives of a mother and her daughter.

Authorities said Kathelene Denise Black, 9, of rural Perry, was killed when the car her mother was driving left Route D about five miles south of Perry and struck a tree stump.

The mother, Mrs. Mary K. Black, 32, died Tuesday night, several hours after the accident, in the University of Missouri Medical Center at Columbia.

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Acne Can Be Big Problem

Dear Dr. Lamb — You had a letter stating that a woman, when put on birth control pills, had her complexion clear. To quote you, "This points up the influence sex hormones have on skin problems." Why for God's sake do doctors and dermatologists ignore this evidence and go on treating acne with tetracycline (it ruined my son's teeth), and X ray and smelly medications? My daughter's face is so badly scarred I cringe. Now what is breaking my heart is my 19-year-old son who has acne can't get rid of it. I have a 12-year-old with this beautiful transparent skin and as soon as I see a red blotch I die a little. Maybe I am making too much of my enigma, but it is devouring me. I love beauty only if it is skin deep.

Dear Reader — Severe acne is difficult to treat. One of the difficult things in practicing medicine is that there are a number of problems that are difficult or impossible to treat. Most doctors would like to be able to prevent cancer, cure heart disease and yes, eliminate acne, but it is just not that simple.

I do believe anyone who has a severe acne of the type your letter suggests your children have had does need expert care. That doesn't guarantee that there won't still be problems, but at least it may prevent them from being as bad as they might otherwise have been. The rest of your letter states you could go to Milwaukee or Madison. Why don't you see if you can get your doctor to refer you to the dermatology department at the University of Wisconsin in Madison. Most of the doctors welcome a consultation and if there is anything new which can be done with the severe type of acne which you describe, perhaps they can be of help. I don't mean to be discouraging, but very severe cases of acne are often very difficult to cure, even by the most competent dermatologists available.

Now about those hormones. Boys and girls both tend to develop the common variety of acne at the time they go through adolescence and start elaborating sex hormones. This is particularly true in boys. So it is a well established observation that sex hormones do influence skin problems sometimes making them worse. Birth control pills can actually help to relieve the problem in some cases. The difficulty is, which is immediately obvious, that birth control pills with female hormones are not exactly the best thing to give to sexually maturing boys, hence, it isn't done. Boys usually prefer to be boys.

County Organization Should Be Limited

Pettis County's membership in the Missouri Association of Counties, the details of which were reported in Monday's paper, would appear to have both good and bad points.

No one can quarrel with the association's goals as described in its bylaws: to provide more adequate and efficient local government ... to protect the interests of the taxpayer ... provide training for county officials, etc.

We firmly believe that the more local the government, the more responsible that government will be to its constituency. And there is no doubt that some areas of county government should be more responsive to local control, and less hamstrung by the state legislature.

However the MAC, being essentially a lobbying group, will only be effective to the extent it can influence the General Assembly. Until the association draws up and presents its first legislative program, we will reserve judgment on this point. Since the county is paying $1,155 a year for the privilege of belonging to the MAC, we will watch for this first statement of policy with great interest.

One section of the MAC's by-laws does give us pause, however. This is the one creating an "associate membership" category in the organization. Associate members, who would have voice but no vote, would consist of individuals, firms or corporations "manufacturing, selling or distributing materials, equipment or supplies purchased or used by any County in carrying on of their duties and responsibilities ..."

There is no reason why these types of vested interests should have a voice in an organization of county judges. They do not in the Missouri Municipal League, whose effectiveness the MAC hopes to model.

Associate membership by contractors, petroleum firms, heavy equipment manufacturers and the like gives the MAC the image of a mutual back-scratching society, and immediately calls into question the organization's loyalty to the "taxpayer."

Better that the MAC limit its membership to elected officials if it is to win the confidence of the people and work on their behalf.

Dollars Go Down The Drain

WASHINGTON — You stay in this town long enough and you recognize a certain formula for bilking the taxpayers out of large sums of money.

You milk 'em where they worry.

Rowan

Americans have a constant worry about national security, which is why the military-industrial complex can go on year after year soaking the Pentagon for billions of dollars in cost overruns, hardware, that doesn't work, specifications that are unmet.

Now a congressional committee tells us that LEAA has been a bonanza for the fast buck operators, but that it has produced precious little law and order.

The House Government Operations Committee has issued a scathing report, charging that LEAA's program has been "characterized by inefficiency, waste, maladministration, and in some cases, corruption."

The report, prepared after a two-year investigation by the Legal and Monetary Affairs Subcommittee chaired by Rep. John S. Monagan (D-Conn.), further charges that LEAA's program of handling large grants over to states has had "no visible impact on the incidence of crime in the United States."

The report alleges that LEAA's impact has been diminished by:

✓ Diversion of funds for political purposes.

✓ Waste of funds on exorbitant consultants' fees.

✓ Political meddling by previous state administrations, especially in Alabama and Florida, destroying public confidence in the programs.

✓ Spending excessive amounts on equipment, often without proper bidding.

The report charges that LEAA has no standards for measuring what little impact it has had on reforming the system of criminal justice and said LEAA is "powerless to determine either the impact and progress of its programs or the desirability of continuing them."

Here is a classic case of politicians winning election on pledges to combat crime, then building up a costly bureaucracy to give the impression of progress even though no one has the faintest evidence of genuine improvement.

Monagan reports that LEAA administrator Jerris Leonard admitted in testimony that his agency "does not know the amounts that have been spent for the purchase of helicopters, airplanes, radio equipment, firearms and other hardware items."

The report alleges that although the law prohibits using federal grant money to purchase land, New Orleans used $204,505 to buy land for a prison. Despite congressional prodding, in more than four months LEAA has done nothing about this apparent violation.

Monagan charges that LEAA is "either unwilling or unable to curb state abuses."

The Safe Streets Act looks beautiful on paper, but the House report shows that in reality it is just another political mirage. One of the most disturbing allegations is that state and local governments aren't even prepared to utilize action grants when LEAA turns over the money.

For the nation as a whole, at the end of fiscal 1971, the congressional investigators found, only 25 per cent of 1969, 1970 and 1971 action funds allocated to state agencies and local governments had actually been disbursed to them by the states.

The states have kept piles of federal cash lying idle, costing the taxpayer more than $4.8 million in unnecessary interest expenses.

Republicans on the committee blast the report as lacking objectivity.

But the sad truth is unavoidable: LEAA money has inspired new kinds of crookedness on the part of people who are supposed to be catching crooks.

New Face in the Crowd?

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The latest secret intelligence reports suggest strongly that the bombing of North Vietnam is bolstering, rather than weakening, the Communist war effort.

There's no doubt that the devastating U.S. firepower has destroyed military supplies and crippled production. But the intelligence reports say that the North Vietnamese economy was already breaking down. Now Hanoi can blame it all on the bombing and exhort the people to put up with hardships in the name of patriotism.

Even before President Nixon renewed the bombing, the intelligence reports claim, North Vietnam was badly faltering. The economy had been strained by war and battered by floods.

This had caused a virtual breakdown of the distribution system. Farmers were hoarding their harvests instead of delivering them to the market. Only the black market was bustling. Smugglers and speculators were doing a brisk business behind the backs of the commissars.

Last year's floods were said to be the worst in 25 years. One CIA cable, quoting a reliable source, reported that "probably at least 80 per cent of the country's rice-growing areas had been damaged in varying degrees."

"Livestock losses were particularly serious, primarily because of the loss of draft animals ... Hanoi had been saved only because the dikes had been purposely breached to channel the flood waters into the districts north of the city."

On top of war losses, this was more than the harassed North Vietnamese economy could stand. One intelligence estimate suggests that Hanoi launched the recent offensive, in part, to divert the people's attention from their economic woes. In a sense, the U.S. naval and air bombardment was almost welcome as an excuse to explain the staggering shortages and to overcome internal discontent.

There's no doubt, too, that the mining of Haiphong harbor and the bombing of the rail lines has disrupted the flow of military supplies. But this has also forced the two Communist rivals, Russia and China, to work together for the first time in 10 years to help their North Vietnamese ally.

Intelligence reports claim that the Chinese have agreed to permit a massive increase in Soviet rail shipments across

Merry-Go-Round

Bombing Bolsters Enemy War Effort

China. The first shipments, which would have been loaded on to ships at Vladivostok, have already been diverted overland.

China and North Vietnam are linked by a network of rail lines, roads and trails which our own military experts acknowledge cannot be cut off by bombing.

Because of the bombing, Hanoi has also brought pressure upon Moscow and Peking to increase their shipments. There's a good possibility, despite the bombing, that the North Vietnamese will wind up with all the military supplies they'll need.

Our own private pollster, Las Vegas' oddsmaker Jimmy the Greek Snyder, predicts next Tuesday's crucial California primary race will end in a "dead heat" between Democrats George McGovern and Hubert Humphrey.

Every other major canvasser has picked McGovern to win by a comfortable margin.

The Greek, however, thinks Humphrey will be saved by what is known as "Proposition 9" on the California ballot.

This is an environmental proposal which, among other things, would shut down corporate polluters, restrict offshore oil drilling, initiate a five-year moratorium on construction of nuclear power plants, and restrict pesticides.

Jimmy believes California's huge block of undecided voters will be lured to the polls by their opposition to "Prop. 9." His surveys show most of these voters will pull the lever over the Humphrey column.

A large number of the silent "undecideds," Jimmy reckons, are people who work in industries that would be restricted. They should go for Humphrey, the labor-backed candidate.

But a lot can happen between now and the June 6 primary day, the Greek warned us. The three-part Humphrey-McGovern debates, in particular, could affect the outcome.

McGovern has the most money and a better organization, Jimmy conceded. But on the negative side, McGovern hurt himself with California's huge defense industry when he voted against a federal loan for Lockheed Aircraft.

Humphrey, possibly looking to the California race, quietly cast the deciding vote in favor of Lockheed.

It all adds up, says the nation's premier oddsmaker, to a neck-and-neck race.

Note: The Greek called two other primaries for us right on the nose, picking Wallace to take the Democratic prize in Florida and Humphrey to edge McGovern in the close Ohio primary.

Apparently, the abuse of military cars is not confined to Washington. At the U.S. Naval Base in Bermuda, for example, the brass ride around in full-size American sedans despite the fact that such large cars are legally forbidden to other residents of the resort island.

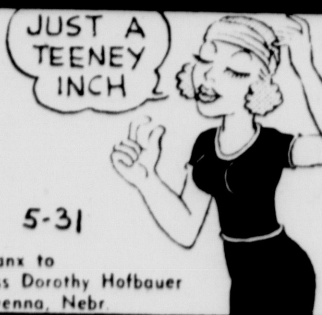

Rear Admiral Robert Coogan, a Pentagon bigwig, was seen recently being chauffeured regally around Bermuda in a sleek black Ford, while other islanders made their way on motorbikes or in small cars.

In Coogan's case, the cushy ride did more than just annoy the islanders. It violated military regulations. He was not on official business, but taking a vacation with the public picking up the bill for his car and driver.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Gosh! The 'runaway' problem seems to be worse than I thought!"

40 Years Ago

Frank Armstrong, well-known Sedalia attorney, who spent Monday fishing on one of the lakes near Sedalia, brings home a fish story which holds the record of the many being told today. Armstrong says he has been fly fishing for many years, but not until Monday did he ever get two bass with one fly, at the same time. Both jumped at the same time, he said, and he hooked them both. They weighed about one pound each.

95 Years Ago

There will be a meeting at the Engine House in East Sedalia on Saturday evening, for the purpose of organizing a fire company.

Today's Thought

Again Jesus spoke to them, saying, "I am the light of the world; he who follows me will not walk in darkness, but will have the light of life." — John 8:12

WORLD ALMANAC
FACTS

The donkey and elephant became popular symbols of the Democratic and Republican parties during the 1870s thanks to magazine cartoons. The World Almanac notes, however, that the parties have their own emblems. Democrats have used both a crowing rooster and a five-pointed star; Republicans have used both the elephant and soaring eagle.

Humphrey Gives Contest His All

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA News Analyst

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) — Standing in a blaze of television light up against a wall on a city street, Sen. Hubert Humphrey was gamely trying to explain away bad third-place showings in the last two primaries before the big one in California Tuesday.

Blossat

He simply said he didn't try because they weren't all that important. But the reality is that his chief rival, Sen. George McGovern, scored two more victories and got fresh momentum for the test here with its great prize of 271 delegate votes.

Humphrey in this setting at this moment in history is something to watch. He knows he is at the crunch; that these are the climactic days in what will surely be his last bid for the presidency. He knows California is crucial to his hopes.

There is poignancy in the shifting campaign scenes as the old warrior struggles valiantly against what seem to be tough odds. It is widely believed that the ascending McGovern has superior money, manpower and momentum.

Yet resilient, buoyant Hubert concedes nothing. In television actor Lorne Greene's jammed living room in a Los Angeles suburb, Humphrey shouted "We're gonna win!" as a black singer sang half a dozen choruses of "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah."

His voice charged with feeling, Humphrey went on:

"I want to be your leader. I want to make you proud of your country. I'll give you everything I've got in my life."

It bothers him that many people, especially some of the young, see him as "old hat," a figure from the past. He retorts:

"My long political life is a rich and tested experience. I'm not a man with eyes in the back of my head looking at yesterday."

He clearly believes that he deserves the fullest political reward for his service and what he considers his acute social vision. Again and again, he runs through the catalogue of major social legislation enacted in the past generation. He claims either authorship or close identity with most items — Medicare, housing subsidies, Job Corps, widened Social Security. He adds:

"All those things have Hubert Humphrey's fingerprints on them."

At times here on the long trail up and down the state, he looks desperately tired. As if holding himself together by the slimmest of margins. But his bounce always returns.

At a rich fund-raiser's ranch house north of San Diego, the candidate waved his arm in a sweep and said:

"Looks like we're winning the war on poverty here."

After the Chicano vote on a Sunday morning in Monterey Park near Los Angeles, he sniffed the breakfast aroma and said:

"Thanks for the smell of the pancakes."

At a rally for blacks in San Francisco's Macedonia Missionary Baptist Church, Humphrey — stirred by some great choral singing — told his listeners:

"I've been on the firing line since day one. Where were you (this plainly an aside aimed at McGovern) when the swords and sabers were drawn against us?"

Humphrey just can't believe that all he has done, all he has fought for in his public life, should not now culminate in his winning the presidency. He has himself in mind when he tells every listener, "You need somebody who's got the guts of Harry Truman."

He is indeed fighting Truman-style. Says a veteran Democrat here, "Humphrey pulls it off, it'll just be his own self who did it."

South hadn't even gotten around to sorting his tremendous hand when he heard West open with four hearts. He had it sorted by the time North and East had passed, but it was quite a while before he decided what to bid. Eventually he settled for a six-spade call.

West opened a heart as one would expect and South looked over dummy happily. It would be a cinch to ruff that heart lead; draw trumps; take his ace and king of diamonds; enter dummy with the 10 of trumps; discard two clubs on the good diamonds and try the club finesse for seven.

All this looked easy but nevertheless South was careful. He ruffed the eight-spot, not the five.

Then he played his ace of trumps and there was East with all three trumps and there was South with need to reach dummy. He cashed his ace and king of diamonds.

PRISCILLA'S POP

led the nine of spades and overtook with dummy's 10. East could do no better than to put on the jack and return the suit. This let South in dummy with the six spot. He discarded two clubs on the high diamonds and tried the club finesse. It worked and the slam came in.

Look what would have happened to South if he had ruffed that first heart with that little five of spades. When he found out about the bad trump break he could still lead the nine of trumps and cover with dummy's 10 but East could win and lead the suit back and there would be no entry. If South played the six on the nine East could simply refuse to take his jack of spades. He would lose the trump trick but he would collect at least two tricks in clubs.

Lockwood Tames Yankees on One-hitter

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN, Associated Press Sports Writer

Del Crandall will remember his major league managerial debut for a long time and Skip Lockwood will never forget Dave Bristol.

"I certainly should be able to remember a one-hitter for a long time," Crandall said Tuesday night after taking over as skipper of the Milwaukee Brewers and watching Lockwood tame New York 3-1 with Rusty Torres' sixth-inning single the Yankees' only hit.

Lockwood, who hurled a six-hit shutout against Detroit last Thursday, said he felt badly when Bristol was fired as manager three days later.

"You can't ever say a manager is your friend," Lockwood said, "but when you lose someone who's taught you a lot you feel the loss. Dave and I had no love lost when I first came up. I was a cocky kid. But in three years I learned from him and got to understand him. He helped me on the baseball field and off and I'll be a better person and a better ballplayer for having played for him."

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston trounced Baltimore 6-0, Texas nipped Oakland 3-2, Minnesota edged Kansas City 3-2 and California whipped the Chicago White Sox 6-0. Detroit and Cleveland were rained out.

Only 4,175 fans saw Crandall's managerial debut in 44-degree weather with gusts up to 26 miles an hour. It was warm inside the Brewers' clubhouse, though.

"I'm very, very pleased and happy about it," Crandall said. "It's just a beginning, but it's a win and that's what's important."

The Brewers tallied in the second, third and eighth innings on run-scoring singles by Elie Rodriguez, George Scott and Mike Ferraro. That was more than enough for Lockwood, even though the 25-year-old right-hander struggled with his control, losing his shutout in the sixth when Torres singled following two walks.

Boston's Ray Culp throttled Baltimore on three hits and Carlton Fisk and Tommy Harper homered off Mike Cuellar as the Red Sox ended the Orioles' four-game winning streak and dropped them into a first-place tie with Detroit in the AL East.

The Sox took advantage of an error by Brooks Robinson, of all people, on a potential double play ball in the second inning to score their first three runs. Culp squeezed home the first one and Luis Aparicio singled for two more.

Texas' Rich Hand allowed Oakland only three hits in 8 1-3 innings but needed a strong relief job by Horacio Pina to preserve his first victory of the season. Dave Duncan homered for the A's—his 10th—and Ted Ford for the Rangers, who got the winning run off Ken Holtzman in the seventh on a single by Ken Suarez, a sacrifice pinch runner. Dave Nelson's steal of third and Toby Harrah's sacrifice fly.

Phil Roof, hitting 180 at game time, powered Minnesota over Kansas City with his first two home runs of the season, solo shots in the second and fourth innings. It was the first time in the catcher's 14-year pro career that he hit two homers in one game. Roof may have been embarrassed by the fact that Jim Perry, the Twins' starting pitcher, had a .313 batting average.

Bob Oliver drove in four runs with a homer and single to support Nolan Ryan's seven-hit, 10-strikeout pitching as the Angels sent the White Sox to their fifth defeat in the last six games.

Roof Homers Keep Royals On the Skids

ST. PAUL-Minneapolis (AP) — In the midst of the light-heartedness and carrying on in the Minnesota Twins' clubhouse about light-hitting catcher Phil Roof cracking two home runs, there were also the serious tones.

Setting the scene, Phil Roof hits his first two homers of the season Tuesday night as Jim Perry, with eighth inning relief help from Dave LaRoche, set down the Kansas City Royals 3-2 on five hits.

Roof's performance came a day after catcher George Mitterwald had stalked into the office of Calvin Griffith, Twins' president, and asked why he had not been playing more. Manager Bill Rigney, hearing of the meeting, was upset because Mitterwald had not come to him first.

Differences were patched up, when after Roof's second homer, the telephone rang in the Minnesota dugout and Rigney answered.

"It was Mitterwald," said Rigney. "He said, 'I was only kidding about hitting better than Phil.'"

Roof went into the game with a .180 average, but in his first at-bat drove a Paul Splittorff pitch 365 feet into the bleachers in right field to break a 1-1 tie. It was tied 2-2 in the fourth, when he led off with a drive 364 feet into the left field seats for the winning run.

"I wanted Perry to get a different look behind the plate," said Rigney, explaining his move to start Roof. "I thought I'd try something first. Even then, he (Perry) didn't look right the first three innings but then he started coming around."

Roof has played only when Bert Blyleven, 6-3, and Jim Katt, 6-1, have pitched.

The victory, before a crowd of 6,164, moved the Twins within one game of West Division leading Oakland in the American League.

The Twins took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on singles by Cesar Tovar and Danny Thompson and a groundout by Harmon Killebrew. A double by Amos Otis and a two-base error on a fly by Tovar gave the Royals a 1-1 tie. Steve Hovley's first homer since 1969 tied it for Kansas City 2-2 in the third.

Crandall Meets Brewers

Del Crandall, left, meets his player for the first time Tuesday as the Milwaukee Brewers manager. Crandall, 42, who was the former Milwaukee Braves catcher during their glory years, was named as the team's new manager Sunday, after Dave Bristol was fired.

Crandall's meeting with the players took place several hours before they were to meet the New York Yankees at Milwaukee County Stadium. The Brewers responded by presenting Crandall with a 3-1 victory. (UPI)

Says Royals Could Be in By July 18

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Harry S. Truman Sports Complex could be usable for baseball July 18th and Football Aug. 12.

The observation was made by Harry Klemp of Langston-Kitch, critical path analysts in charge of scheduling for the complex.

The report came Tuesday at the fourth in a series of weekly meetings to review progress at the stadiums.

Klemp's report included only work on the stadiums, and not on supporting facilities such as primary roads.

A spokesman for the Kansas City Royals said the club would decide June 15 whether to move to the new stadium July 18.

Paul Kostopolus Topples S-M

Paul Kostopolus hurled Pepsi-Cola to a 6-1 victory over defending Sedalia Senior Babe Ruth champion S-M Sporting Goods, by spinning up a two-hitter as the 1972 season opened in Liberty Park Stadium, Tuesday night.

Kostopolus, who yielded his only two hits in the fourth inning as Doug Maple doubled and Steve Herzberg singled him home for the lone S-M run, not only was the night's top pitcher, but also captured the batting honors with four straight singles.

National Bank, as they opened with their first victory of the season. Willie Reed, who came on in relief of starter Greg Moyer in the third inning, was tagged with the loss.

VFW managed to tie the score at 6-6, but could not come up with the winning advantage.

Infielder Derrick Crank went two-for-four for the winners; he stole a pair of bases and sparked Third National Bank in the field with his fine defensive play.

Two games are on tap in Liberty Park on tonight's schedule.

The opener at 6:15 p.m. pits Third National Bank Against S-M; VFW will meet Pepsi-Cola at 8:15 p.m.

Says Joe Pepitone May Rejoin Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Sun-Times reported in today's editions that recently retired Chicago Cubs first baseman-outfielder Joe Pepitone will meet today with Cubs general manager John Holland for talks on his possible return to active play.

In the opening night's other contest, Third National Bank outlasted VFW, 8-6.

Leading by only 1-0 after three innings of play, Pepsi-Cola scored two in the fourth, one in the fifth and capped it with two more in the sixth to gain an early-season first-place tie with Third National Bank in the current standings.

Kostopolus struck out 11 and walked only two in hurling Pepsi-Cola to the win. He was backed by a 14-hit attack.

Randy Kidwell, one of the S-M mainstays in the team's drive to the 1971 championship, went the distance in taking the loss.

Weather Swells Scores

Nicklaus, Whitworth Establish National Golf Day Standards

CLEVELAND (AP) — The nation's duffers got a break from the weather—it was terrible—in their hopes of beating scores posted by pro champions Jack Nicklaus and Kathy Whitworth.

Lee Trevino and women's open champion Jo Anne Carner in the annual National Golf Day activities at the Canterbury Country Club course Tuesday.

Trevino, bundled in sweaters and rain gear, played the front nine in 39 en route to a five-over-par 76, losing to Nicklaus by four strokes. Miss Whitworth beat Miss Carner 80-82 in the women's competition.

Those winning scores, 72 for men and 80 for women, will be the targets for thousands of players throughout the country in one of golf's largest annual charitable programs.

For a $1 entry fee players can attempt to beat those scores in relation to par—one over for men, six over for women—at any public or private course in the country. All amateurs use their established handicaps in their efforts to beat the champs. Those who do will receive a certificate stating that they beat Jack Nicklaus or Kathy Whitworth.

Link Emprise and McKeithen

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee probing alleged Mafia infiltration into professional sports has again been told how efforts of a Louisiana racetrack and of a Buffalo, N.Y., holding company have contributed to the political campaigns of Louisiana governors.

Further disclosures about the operation of Jefferson Downs race track, located outside New Orleans, could come today. Aaron Kahn, a member of the New Orleans Crime Commission, and Kenneth Norris, of the Louisiana State Police, are scheduled to testify before the House Select Committee on Crime.

Tuesday's testimony was highlighted by the disclosure by John Mason, president of Jefferson Downs, that he had given $5,000 to the campaign coffers of former Louisiana Gov. John McKeithen.

He said several of his associates, including the Jacobs brothers who head up Emprise Corp. of Buffalo, N.Y., contributed an additional $20,000.

Emprise owns most of the stock in Jefferson Downs.

The holding corporation, which recently was convicted in Los Angeles of conspiracy to use interstate facilities to acquire a hidden interest in the Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas, was linked in earlier testimony to a contribution to the late Gov. Earl Long.

Bradford P. Leacy testified two weeks ago that Emprise gave $10,000 to Long's campaign. He said the money was paid while a subsidiary of the Buffalo firm was involved in reorganization of Jefferson Downs.

Soloman, Orantes Tangle on Court

PARIS (AP) — Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., the surprise of the French Open Tennis Tournament, meets Manuel Orantes of Spain in a quarter-final match on the center court today.

Orantes, seeded No. 4 and winner of the recent Italian Championship, is heavily favored. But the highstrung Solomon wasn't expected to get even this far.

Solomon earned his No. 10 ranking in the United States through a long series of victories in satellite tournaments. This is his first overseas tour and his first try for a major international championship.

Robbie Sparks LA Into First Place

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Los Angeles Dodgers

against the San Francisco Giants? To Frank Robinson, it's just another ball game. But he's got other incentives. "I haven't been around here long enough to get any specific feeling over the Dodgers-Giants rivalry," the Los Angeles right fielder said Tuesday night.

"These games haven't got the adrenalin flowing."

"But this was a very important game," Robinson added. "It got us into first."

More properly, Robinson got the Dodgers into first with his bat and glove. In the top of the eighth inning he followed Willie Davis' leadoff single with a tie-breaking home run.

Then, in the bottom of the inning, with the Giants threatening to score—and stumbling all over themselves in the futile attempt—he gunned down a San Francisco runner at the plate to preserve the Dodgers' 5-3 victory.

In the rest of the National League's weather-wrecked schedule, the New York Mets beat Philadelphia 7-0 and Cincinnati defeated Houston 9-5. Rain postponed the San Diego-Atlanta and Pittsburgh-Montreal games and cold weather knocked out St. Louis' contest against the Cubs in Chicago.

Robinson also drove in a run with a sacrifice fly as the Dodgers built a 3-0 lead, only to see it evaporate by the seventh inning as Dave Kingman belted his 12th home run and Bobby Bonds knocked in two runs with a single and a fly ball.

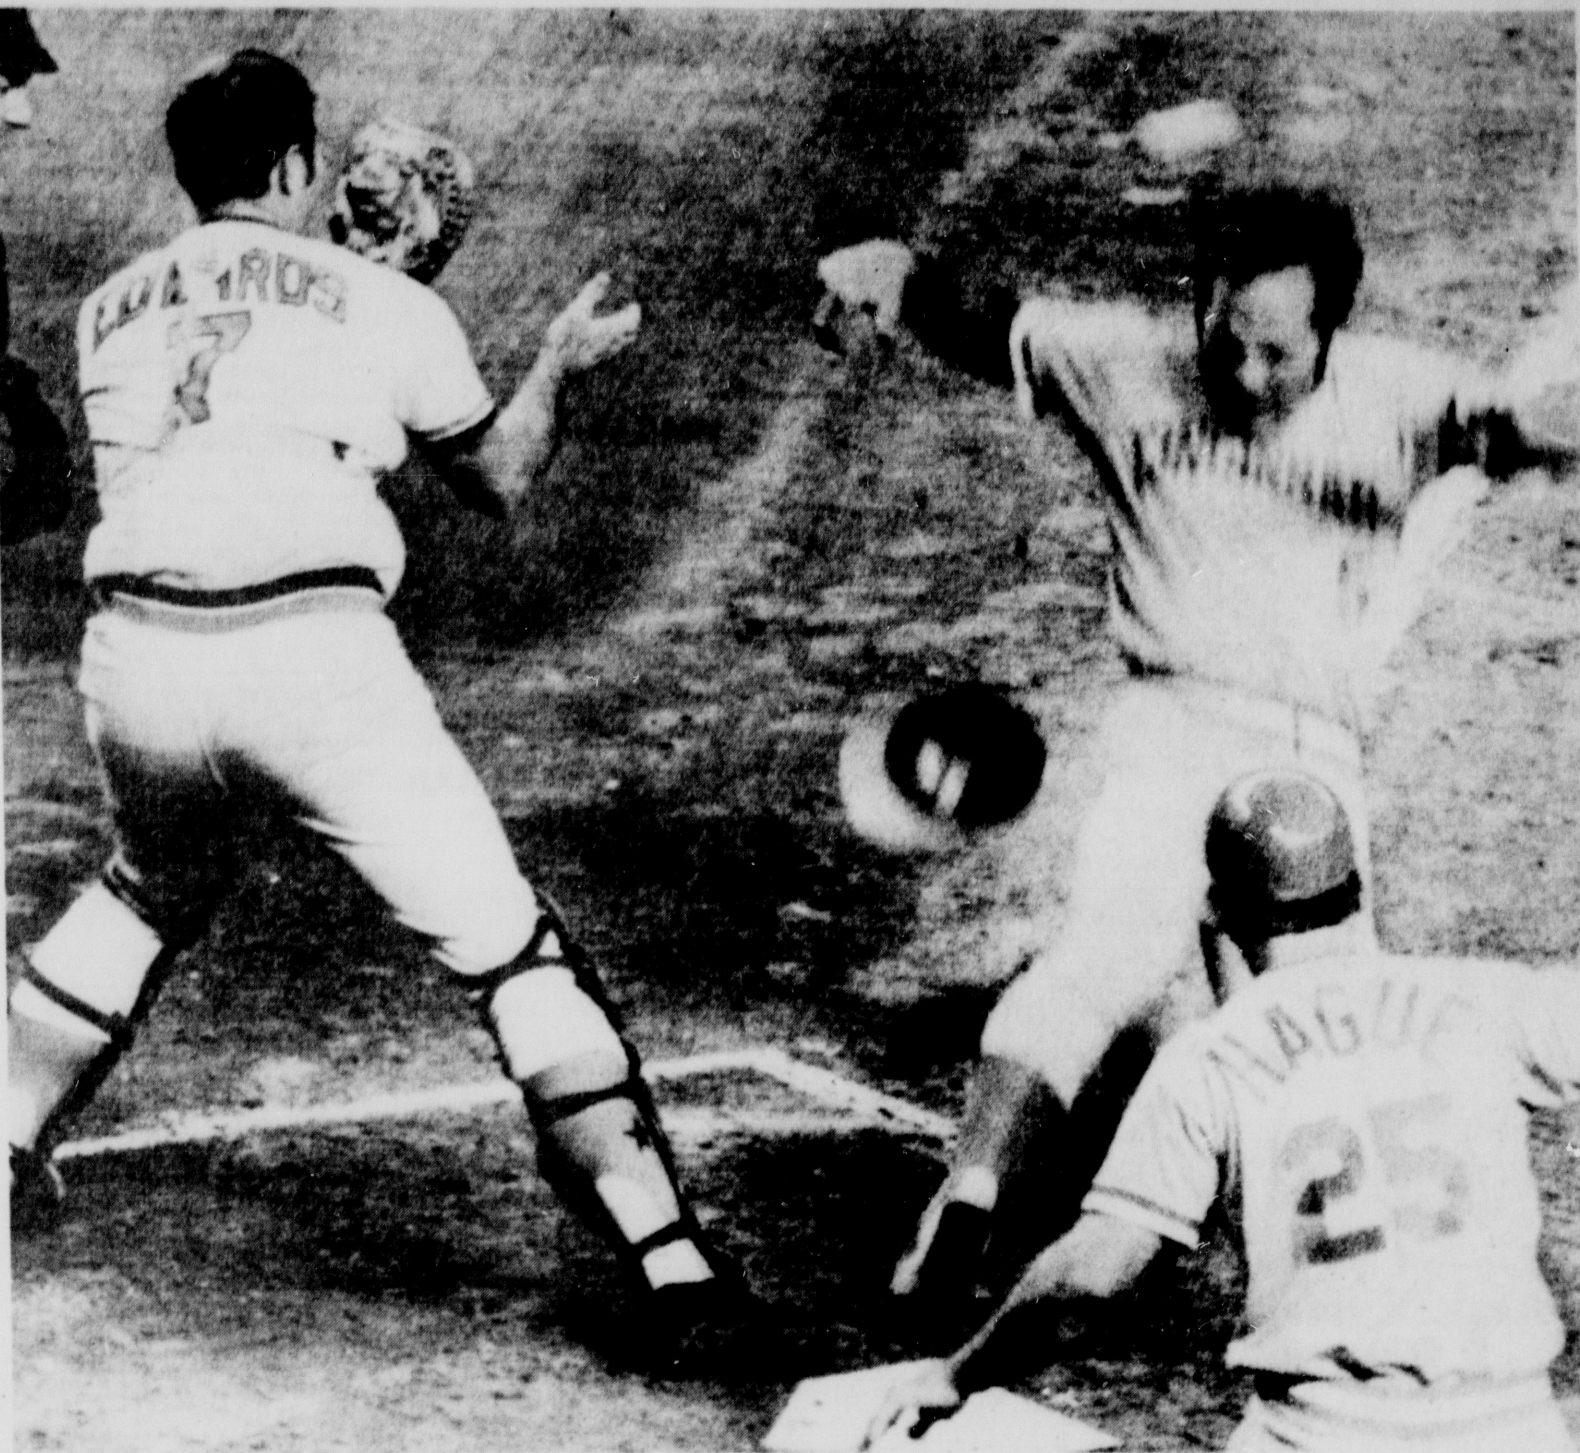

Then came the bizarre bottom of the eighth.

The Giants managed to get through it without a run despite three singles and a hit batsman.

Tito Fuentes and Ed Goodson singled and Damasco Blanco, just up from the minors, went in to run for Goodson.

Kingman, the next batter, then missed a bunt attempt and Fuentes, who'd taken off on the pitch, was trapped between second and third.

He finally managed, with some urging by the Dodgers, to make it back to second, only to find Blanco already there. Blanco was called out on the play.

Red Streak

Although not in color, Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Redlegs is merely a blur as he slides for home in the second inning of Tuesday night's game against Houston in the Astrodome, after driving a ball of the left-center field wall for an inside the park homer. Astros' catcher John Edwards waits for the throw, which was too late to tag out Bench. The Reds whipped the Astros for the second night in a row, this time by the count of 9-5. (UPI)

Poised for Action

Los Angeles Dodgers' Frank Robinson is poised for just that in this file photo. His two-run homer in the eighth inning of Tuesday night's game against the San Francisco Giants, along with his fine fielding, helped lift the Dodgers into first place in the National League's Western Division with a 5-3 win over the Giants. Casper, Jacklin Favored In Charlotte Tournament

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Tony Jacklin of England and globetrotting Billy Casper make their return to the American tour this week as two of the favorites in the very strong field arrayed for the $175,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

Arnold Palmer, South African Gary Player, Lee Trevino, George Archer, Jerry Heard, Bob Lunn and Tom Weiskopf also are in the 144-man field that begins a 72-hole test Thursday on the Quail Hollow Country Club course, a vast track that stretches 7,278 yards over rolling hills and plays to a par 72.

Of the game's great names only Jack Nicklaus is among the missing. The Masters champion and leading money winner took the week off to consider his shabby showing in the last two rounds at Atlanta last week and try to find a putting stroke.

Casper pulled a sagging game together in his last American appearance a month ago when he tied Chi Chi Rodriguez for first place at Dallas only to lose in a playoff. He's been on a tour of Europe and North Africa since then.

Jacklin, who won at Jacksonville early this year, hasn't played in this country since the Tournament of Champions, almost two months ago.

Hawk's Biggest Tourney: To Get His PGA Card

ATLANTA (AP) — "I'll make it, I'll make it yet."

A wry smile cracked the craggy face of Ken Harrelson, but the eyes held the hungry glint of a hunting hawk.

"I'm going to be the first player to make $100,000 a year in one sport, shift over to another sport and make $100,000 a year there," he said.

He's just a little over $99,000 short.

Harrelson has been considerably less than spectacular since he abandoned an eight-year baseball career as an outfielder-first baseman with Boston and Cleveland to try and conquer the demanding world of tournament golf.

He once led the American League in runs batted in, hit 35 home runs with Boston one season, and, at one time, had a $100,000 annual salary.

His biggest check in golf has been just over $600.

He failed to make it through the Tournament Players Division school last fall, picking up in disgust before completing the testing grind that enables young players to compete on the lucrative pro tour.

He's played in two major tour events this year—and hasn't completed either failing to qualify for the final two rounds in both the Doral-Eastern and the Atlanta Classic.

"I've had a lot of invitations to play," Harrelson said. "But since I didn't get through the school, I don't have a players' card. If you don't have the card, you can play in only three events."

"I've played in two. The other one will probably be Cleveland."

The 32-year-old Harrelson, still whipped-lean as he was when he was dubbed "The Hawk" as he roamed the major league outfields, admits he "wasn't ready when I first tried to come out."

Predictably, he's a hard hitter. He won a driving contest—with a belt of 301 yards—against the regular pros in Atlanta. But that has been some of his trouble.

"He can hit it, but he doesn't know where it's going to go," said Bob Toski, a former touring pro and now one of the game's most respected teachers.

With his necessarily restricted playing schedule, Harrelson has to content himself with playing in small, non-sanctioned tournaments—he won the $600 in one of those—and with working on his game.

"Right now my goal is the the Players School in Napa, Calif., this fall," he said. That's where you get your card, earn the right to compete. That's the biggest tournament in the world for me right now."

Tim Foli . . .

Leads League in Temper

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — One can only painfully imagine Tim Foli's inner tortures.

He is the Montreal Expos' shortstop, lean and taut and volatile as a firecracker.

At age 21, he is filled with talent and promise and unquenchable temper.

In the space of one week in late May, he was fined $100 for throwing down his batting helmet and bat at a called third strike, and then thumbed out of a game while protesting with throbbing neck veins another called third strike.

With the New York Mets this spring, he got into a clubhouse argument with coach Joe Pignatano and heaved a punch. Not long after, he was traded to Montreal.

Conceivably this punch had something to do with the trade, the last blow as far as the Mets were concerned. They may have felt that, for all of Foli's aggressiveness and potential, they are not running a Stillman's gym. For in the dugout last summer Foli had also presented Ed Kranepool with a knuckle sandwich.

On the field, Foli will make an infield out and run at the first baseman in sheer frustration. In the dugout, he walks the planks a thousand times like a worrisome prelin fighter.

In customarily sensitive fashion, teammates call Foli "nutsy" and "Crazy Horse" and "redneck."

"It's because I'm so highstrung," he says. He says he is driven to be the best shortstop in baseball, but has so far succeeded in being only the brashiest.

If teammates are of little help and understanding, umpires are even less so. His spectacular complaints are taken by defensive umpires as an attempt to show them up.

"Half the umpires in the league are trying to curb his temper," said Montreal manager Gene Mauch. "They're so smart they ought to be psychiatrists at Columbia."

Mauch, however, says that he would like to channel Foli's fiery spirit. "He wants to be the first man to hit 1,000," said Mauch. "He won't be, of course. And when he understands that he'll be a different guy. But it takes experience for someone to learn just how capable he is."

Foli, an intelligent, unsmiling fellow whose steel-rimmed glasses add a degree of austerity, says he is so wound up before a game that he has difficulty eating, and finds it so hard to unwind after a game that he tosses in bed well into the night.

"I'm working on my self-control," he says. "I'm trying hard to relax more."

Yet when he goes 0-for-20, as he did in May, he begins to tighten the grip of his bat and the grit of his teeth. Do I have it? must be a persistent thought.

He obviously expects a great deal of himself. He was signed by the Mets for a reported $75,000 bonus as No. 1 free agent draft choice in 1968. After three good seasons in the minors, he spent much of 1971 on the Mets' bench, he hit 226 in 97 games. He was sometimes erratic in the field and, when the team floundered, he was distressingly booed.

Foli received a break by going to Montreal where a strating job was open to him. He wants to make the most of it, in a hurry. He comes from a baseball family and, it seems, is looking over his shoulder at it.

He had an older brother who, he says, only had a "cup of coffee" in the majors, with the California Angels. And Foli's father was his team manager in Little League. There remain unspoken pressures.

"I talk to my dad about once a week on the phone," says Foli, "and we both feel the same way about my career. It isn't success just being here. You've got to do something to make yourself known. You've got to prove you can play."

Pressure in the big leagues for anyone, especially for an unproven 21-year-old, is monumental. Before 40,000 ungenerous fans, each trip to the plate can be a trauma. One thinks of some other "high-strung" players like Ted Williams and Ty Cobb who learned to handle the pressure. And some like Jimmy Piersall and the young Tony Horton who did not.

Opening Ceremonies In Khoury League

Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax and Sedalia Police Chief William Miller will take part in the opening ceremonies tonight of the 1972 Sedalia Khoury Softball League in Centennial Park.

The ceremonies will be held at 6:30 p.m. at the Mopso Diamond.

Following the ceremonies, Sedalia Board of Realtors will take on Union Savings Bank in the season's opener. At 8 p.m. on that field, S.M. Sporting Goods and McCown's Salvage meet.

Other season openers find Hobson and Son taking on Canada Dry at 7 p.m. on the Bob Black Diamond, Roseland Meats clashes with Homaker's at 7 p.m. on the Lions Diamond.

SANDWICH, England (AP) — Veteran Walker Cup golfers, Joe Carr of Ireland and Ed Tutwiler of the United States, meet today in a battle of wits on one of the most demanding courses in the world.

The wily old campaigners—Carr is 50 and Tutwiler 52—were paired in the third round of the British Amateur Championship on the Royal St. George's link.

The exposed 6,633-yard, par 34-36—70 course always is difficult because of its deep and cunningly placed sand traps, but this week a high wind,

Delayed One Day

MONTREAL (AP) — A strike by city manual workers and a conflict with a Montreal Expos' National League baseball game has forced a one-day postponement of the Canada-U.S. women's track meet scheduled here this weekend.

The track meet, which will bring together some of North America's finest women athletes, was to have opened Saturday but a conflict with a scheduled baseball game forced the start be postponed to Sunday.

Busing Measure Hits Roadblock

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A House-passed bill to ban "forced busing" in Illinois has run into a roadblock in the state Senate.

In a hearing Tuesday, the Senate Welfare Committee voted 9-2 to kill the measure sponsored by Rep. Don Moore, R-Park Forest.

Sen. Fred Smith, D-Chicago, said the measure would, if adopted, be a "big step backward" for race relations in Illinois.

"This is a covert attempt to revive again the Illinois black laws, as damnable a body of laws as any passed in Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida," Smith, chairman of the committee, said.

"If it is intended by the bill to show us that a majority can thrust this thing down our throats, then I'm going to give you your chance," he added.

Moore's measure would bar any classification of pupils within a school district on the basis of race or religion.

One-Car Crash Fatal to Girl

PERRY, Mo. (AP) — A 9-year-old Perry girl, Kathlene Denise Black, was killed Tuesday in a one-car accident near this Ralls County community.

Authorities say the girl was killed when a car driven by her mother drove off Rt. D about five miles south of Perry and struck a tree stump.

Mrs. Black was taken to a nearby hospital with serious injuries.

The Sedalia Scottish Rite Club will hold a business meeting at the Masonic Temple, Thursday, June 1, at 7:30 p.m. All Scottish Rite Masons are urged to attend. After the business meeting we will practice the Twenty-ninth degree to be conferred June 3. All persons working in the degree please be present.

BRYANT MOTOR CO.

2nd & Kentucky Sedalia, Mo.

Joy is discovering that the great tradition of Valiant value lives on in Plymouth Duster.

A couple of years ago we introduced a sporty version of the Plymouth Valiant, called Duster. Duster has quickly become one of the hottest selling small cars in America. It figures. Duster is just big enough, just small enough to be just right. So is the price. And so is our deal.
